In Celebration

by Karen Marie

Of Friends

Here's to Good Friends-in celebration of times past, and those to come. Friends are everlasting and here at NPHS we have gone through many years of friends and acquaintances. It is now that we salute them in this, Newbury Park High's fifteenth year of existence. People come and go, but we remember those that are dear to us. Friends and their memories have always been important, why else would so many things be written about them? There is one old song that's been around campfires longer than most of us have been, that goes "Make new friends but keep the old, one is silver and the other gold."

"Gold" is a key word here because it is a never tarnishing precious item just as old friends are precious and never ending in their love and care for one another. Silver is also brilliant and ever increasing in value like our friends anew. New friends give us something to look forward to, something that will always be, because there is no limit to how many friendships can be made. So why not take advantage of our opportunities. As we make new friends of silver, we in turn change others into everlasting Gold.

by Karen Marie

"What is a friend?"

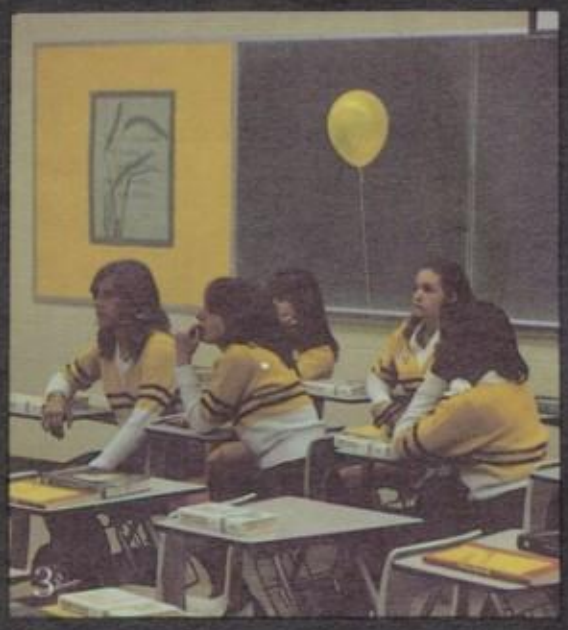
"A person."

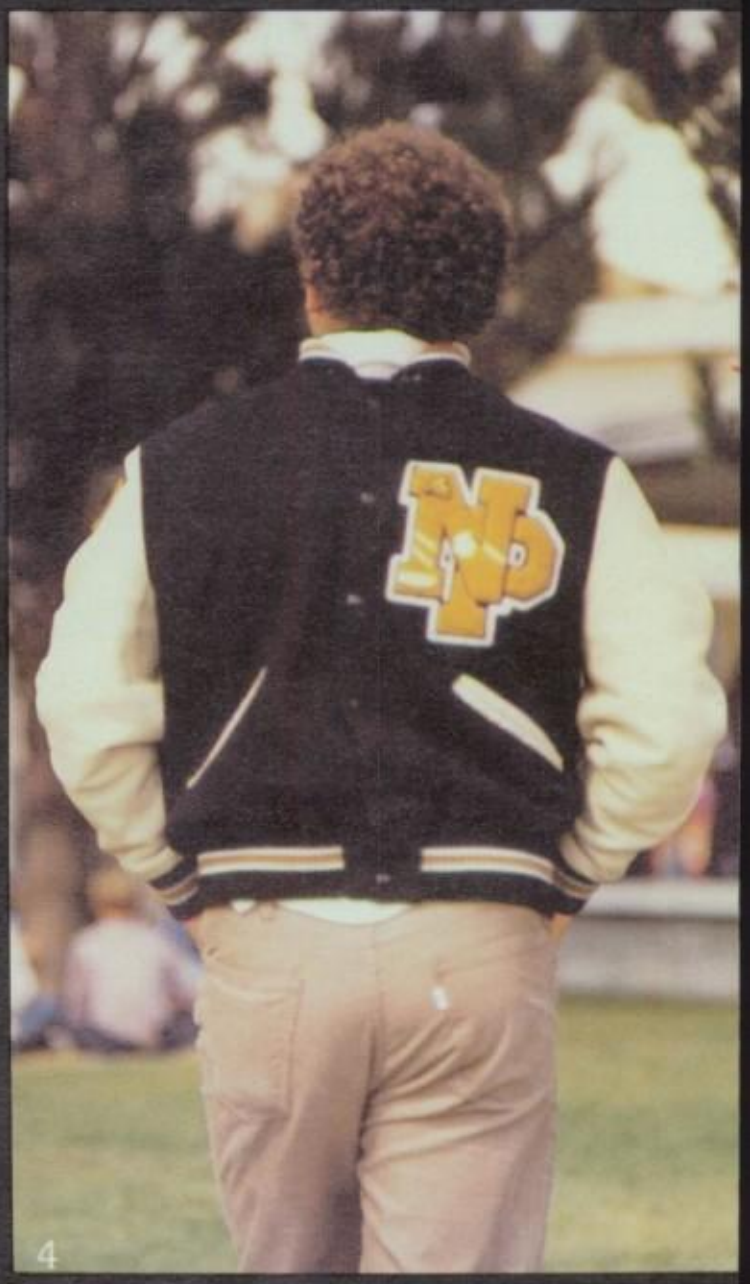
"Usually, but what kind of person? What do they do? What's so special about this person? Webster defines a friend as "one attached to another by affection or esteem." A friend is a companion who is liked and doesn't tear the other down. There is total acceptance, no matter what mood a person may be in or how bad their jokes may seem, a friend is always beside them to make the way easier. When problems are laid upon them, their ears are always open and their hearts are always giving. Friends share interests, pains, and joys. Both good and bad may be experienced but that doesn't affect a friendship. Often there is also a bond of love that keeps friends together for ever. It may sound sentimental, but just look back at all of the friendships that have been formed; they usually still exist. Even when friends are separated, there is a bond that holds the two together.

Friends are not always of the same age group or background. There are many teacher/student friendships as well as parent/child friends. Many people have friends they have never met. Penpals form a friendship through the mail; they form a different type of relationship, one based on things other than physical appearance or common environment.

Questions

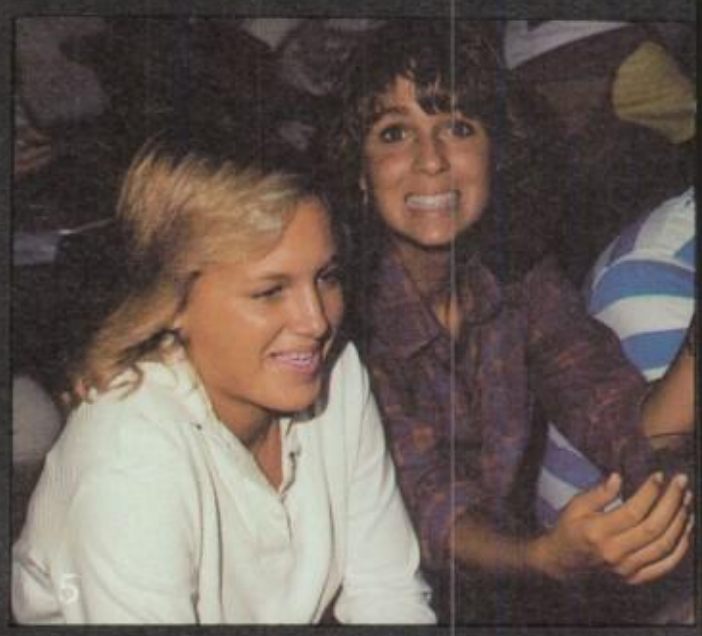
Friends are unique, no matter how they are formed, because there is no limit to how many different kinds of people they may be. Each is an individual and the world is the only limit.





1. Probing the many meanings of friendship, Charmay Wilson and Sharmaine Schuller confer with friends.
2. Friendship sparkles and dazzles the mind.
3. Friendly drill team members Pamela Schulty, Clarry Levy, Camille Slack, Michele Mittelstaedt, and Patricia Mc Glothlin act as escorts at Open House.
4. Friends can expect the unexpected from Dave Passovoy.
5. Lunch time in the cafeteria provides Mike Avers, Helen Valdez, Sue Lee, and Leslie Sellmeyer a chance to form friendships.

On Friendship



1. Concerned over a mutual friend, Jimmy Harrick reassures Devon Cloutier.
2. Informed of her friends' good news, Judy Ihn shares her delight with Kim and Ioan Nguyen.
3. Friends Charlie Douglas, Ed Gillaspie, and Lance Gomez add a special something to the Senior picture.
4. Enthused by the company of her friends, Stephanie Wells "laughs on."
5. Not receiving the attention of her friend Debbie Miller, Mary Anne Bohmann captures that of the photographer.

The Importance

by Karen Marie

Of Friends.

As social beings we seek companionship, therefore a life of solitude is not popular nor easy to come by, especially here at Newbury Park High where we are surrounded by a 2,000 plus student body and staff. We need companionship and it is through this need that we come by friends.

Friends are important to us; they take over areas the family can not cover. Though we are born into the company of families, they don't always fulfill our social needs. Not many would want their little brother or sister tagging along on their Saturday night outings, therefore we turn to that wonderful being, the friend. Friends share the same interest, support one another, and what seems most important, depend on one another. It is this feeling of need and dependability that gives us a sense of worth and responsibility. All of us need to feel needed. Perhaps that is how the saying "A friend in need, is a friend in deed" came into being. If a person cares and depends enough on us to turn to us in times of need, we in turn satisfy our desires to be needed. Whatever our need, large or small, it's great to know there is a friend standing by to fulfill it.

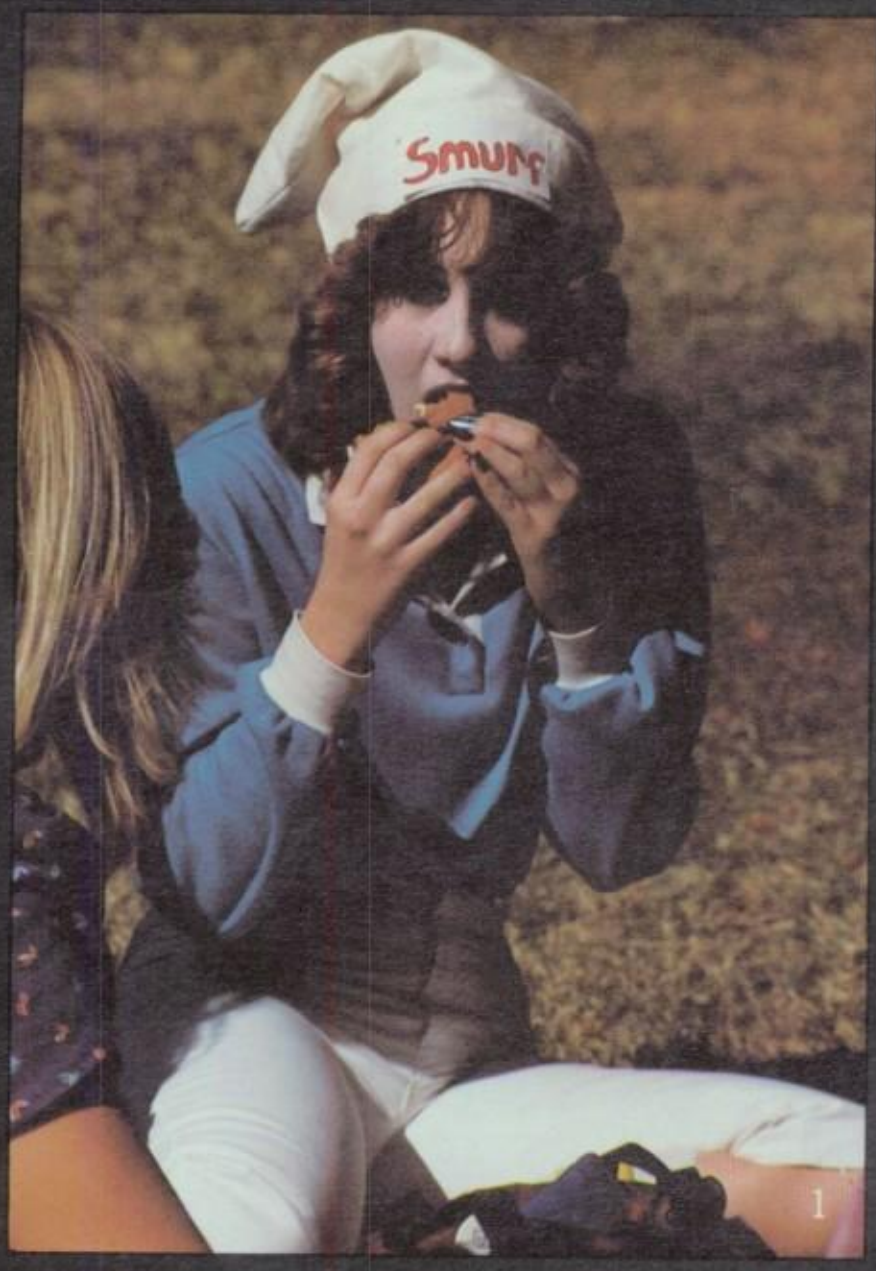
Students Strive To Be Unique

by Karen Marie



Self-expression is very meaningful and important to high school students. Here at NPHS we have found many ways of expressing ourselves. No matter what feeling we wish to convey, there is always some way to do it. Some people choose unique styles of clothing or hair color (orange seems to be the new color). Those who like the norm, just flow with the styles, blending with the crowd. Others stay way behind or far ahead of the times; they are very noticeable to say the least. Some people choose to say their feelings in words on shirts and buttons. From tastes in music to the new soap opera craze, there always seems to be a shirt or button to get the message across.

If words aren't your thing, try a signal. There are any number of them, from facial expressions to the way we fold our arms. One way says, "Go away, it's been a hard week" while another says, "Come give me a hug, I'm in a loving mood."

Other people express themselves by the things they do. Some love to clown around, while others express themselves on the sport's field. The romantic finds putting pen to paper is effective. So too do those with a talent that results in a student poem book or an article in the Prowler. There also are those who are into taking pictures, thereby producing this book, the 81-82 Pawprint.

1. A Smurf Randy Janss munches an elfish lunch.
2. A group of students "Soaps" out.
3. Expressions are related through shirts.
4. An intimidating look is thrown by Tricia Friel.
5. A group of toga lovers shows off at the Senior picture.
6. Steve Smith blindly takes the challenge offered by the photographer.

Students Strengthen Skills

Summertime Panthers Sharpen Up

by Rebecca A. Brodrick

During the summer many students at Newbury Park High School had a chance to improve their social and interactive skills by attending summer workshops and camps. These students were members of various clubs at NPHS.

Social Skills Improved.

Many of the physically active clubs such as Cheerleaders, Tall Flags, and Drill Team went to summer camp to help improve their skills at representing the school and to improve their school spirit. Two other groups who went to summer workshops were Yearbook and Student Government. The Yearbook members attended a week-long session at Pepperdine University. There they learned much about becoming contributing members of the staff. The Student Government attended a summer workshop designed to help improve their leadership skills. All of these students benefited greatly from these workshops, learning not only technical and physical skills, but social skills as well.

Fund Raisers And Dads' Wallets Help To

by Rebecca Brodrick

"Do you mean I have to have insurance on my car?" This was one of the many anguished cries as students learned the high cost of living. Many students purchased cars during the year and along with the cars came insurance costs, registration and license fees, gasoline costs, and numerous repair bills. Some students got their own jobs to help pay for these expenditures, others had parents or other relatives to help them out. Still others, got jobs babysitting and mowing lawns. Besides cars, other costs students had were concerts, movies, theme parks, and records; clothing, such as the fashionable knickers; and school items, such as class rings, yearbooks, and for the Seniors, their Senior pictures. As each item was purchased, students got a good picture of what their parents were calling the "high cost of living."

One of the ways students contributed to the school's meeting the increased cost of living was by having fundraisers. Fundraisers were held by different groups. The Senior, Junior, Sophomore, and Freshman classes, drill team, ASG, and yearbook members, drama club and band members were all active sales people. Money raised in these sales went to support activities such as the many informal dances and the Prom. A few of the items sold were yearbooks and Student Activity Cards, M & M's, peanut cups, and other nutritious chocolate candies, Homecoming carnations and messages, calendars, and jewelry.

By the time most people reach their senior year in high school, they have already made most of the friends they will have in school. Many people do not realize the little things that have helped them acquire those friends or the when and the where. Many of our friends come simply from childhood, they are neighbors and grade school buddies. In high school friends come more from clubs and organizations than from academic classes. Depending upon what your interests are, your friends could come from such diverse groups as football, band, drama, yearbook, ASG, or cheerleading. Joining different clubs also brings you different friends. Your friends might come from the French, German, or math clubs. Maybe you gain friends by participating in Spanish, dungeons and dragons, or ecology. Thus, your friends are probably not from any one group. Though you get along as easily with a music lover as with a sports' fan, your different friends might not get along as easily. Friendships provide an ever expanding circle of friends, tying all of us together as one group, the Student Body.

The Future Beams Before Us.

What Will You Do In '92'?

by Karen Marie

Futuristic ideas and fantasies are flashed before us on a screen. We see cities flying through space, men cut in half by laser weapons, and other startling technology. But what does the future really hold? Where do you see yourself in the year 1992, only eight years from the turn of the century? Will there be robots to take out the trash or will we still rely on the children to do it? Will we depend on the sun or uranium as our major power source? The question of what does your future hold was asked of a few students here at NPHS; these are their responses.

"I will be retired from a law practice to have children. Happy. Married." This is where Becky Brodrick sees herself.

Teresa Kachocki sees herself as a career woman, "a well known architect; married, but with no children yet; I'll own my own house." That was her response.

Doug Keyser foresees a career as an astronaut with an "awesome" family. Whereas for Mike Torre, he wants to be a single, making his living as a director and producer.

April Vogel, the ASG President, said, "It's most likely, but no one knows for sure what the future holds, that I will be president of my own accounting firm or possibly a translator. Whatever my career is, it will be something dealing with math or language because that's what I want to major and minor in, in college. I'll also most likely be married."

Crosby Hopes For Bob.

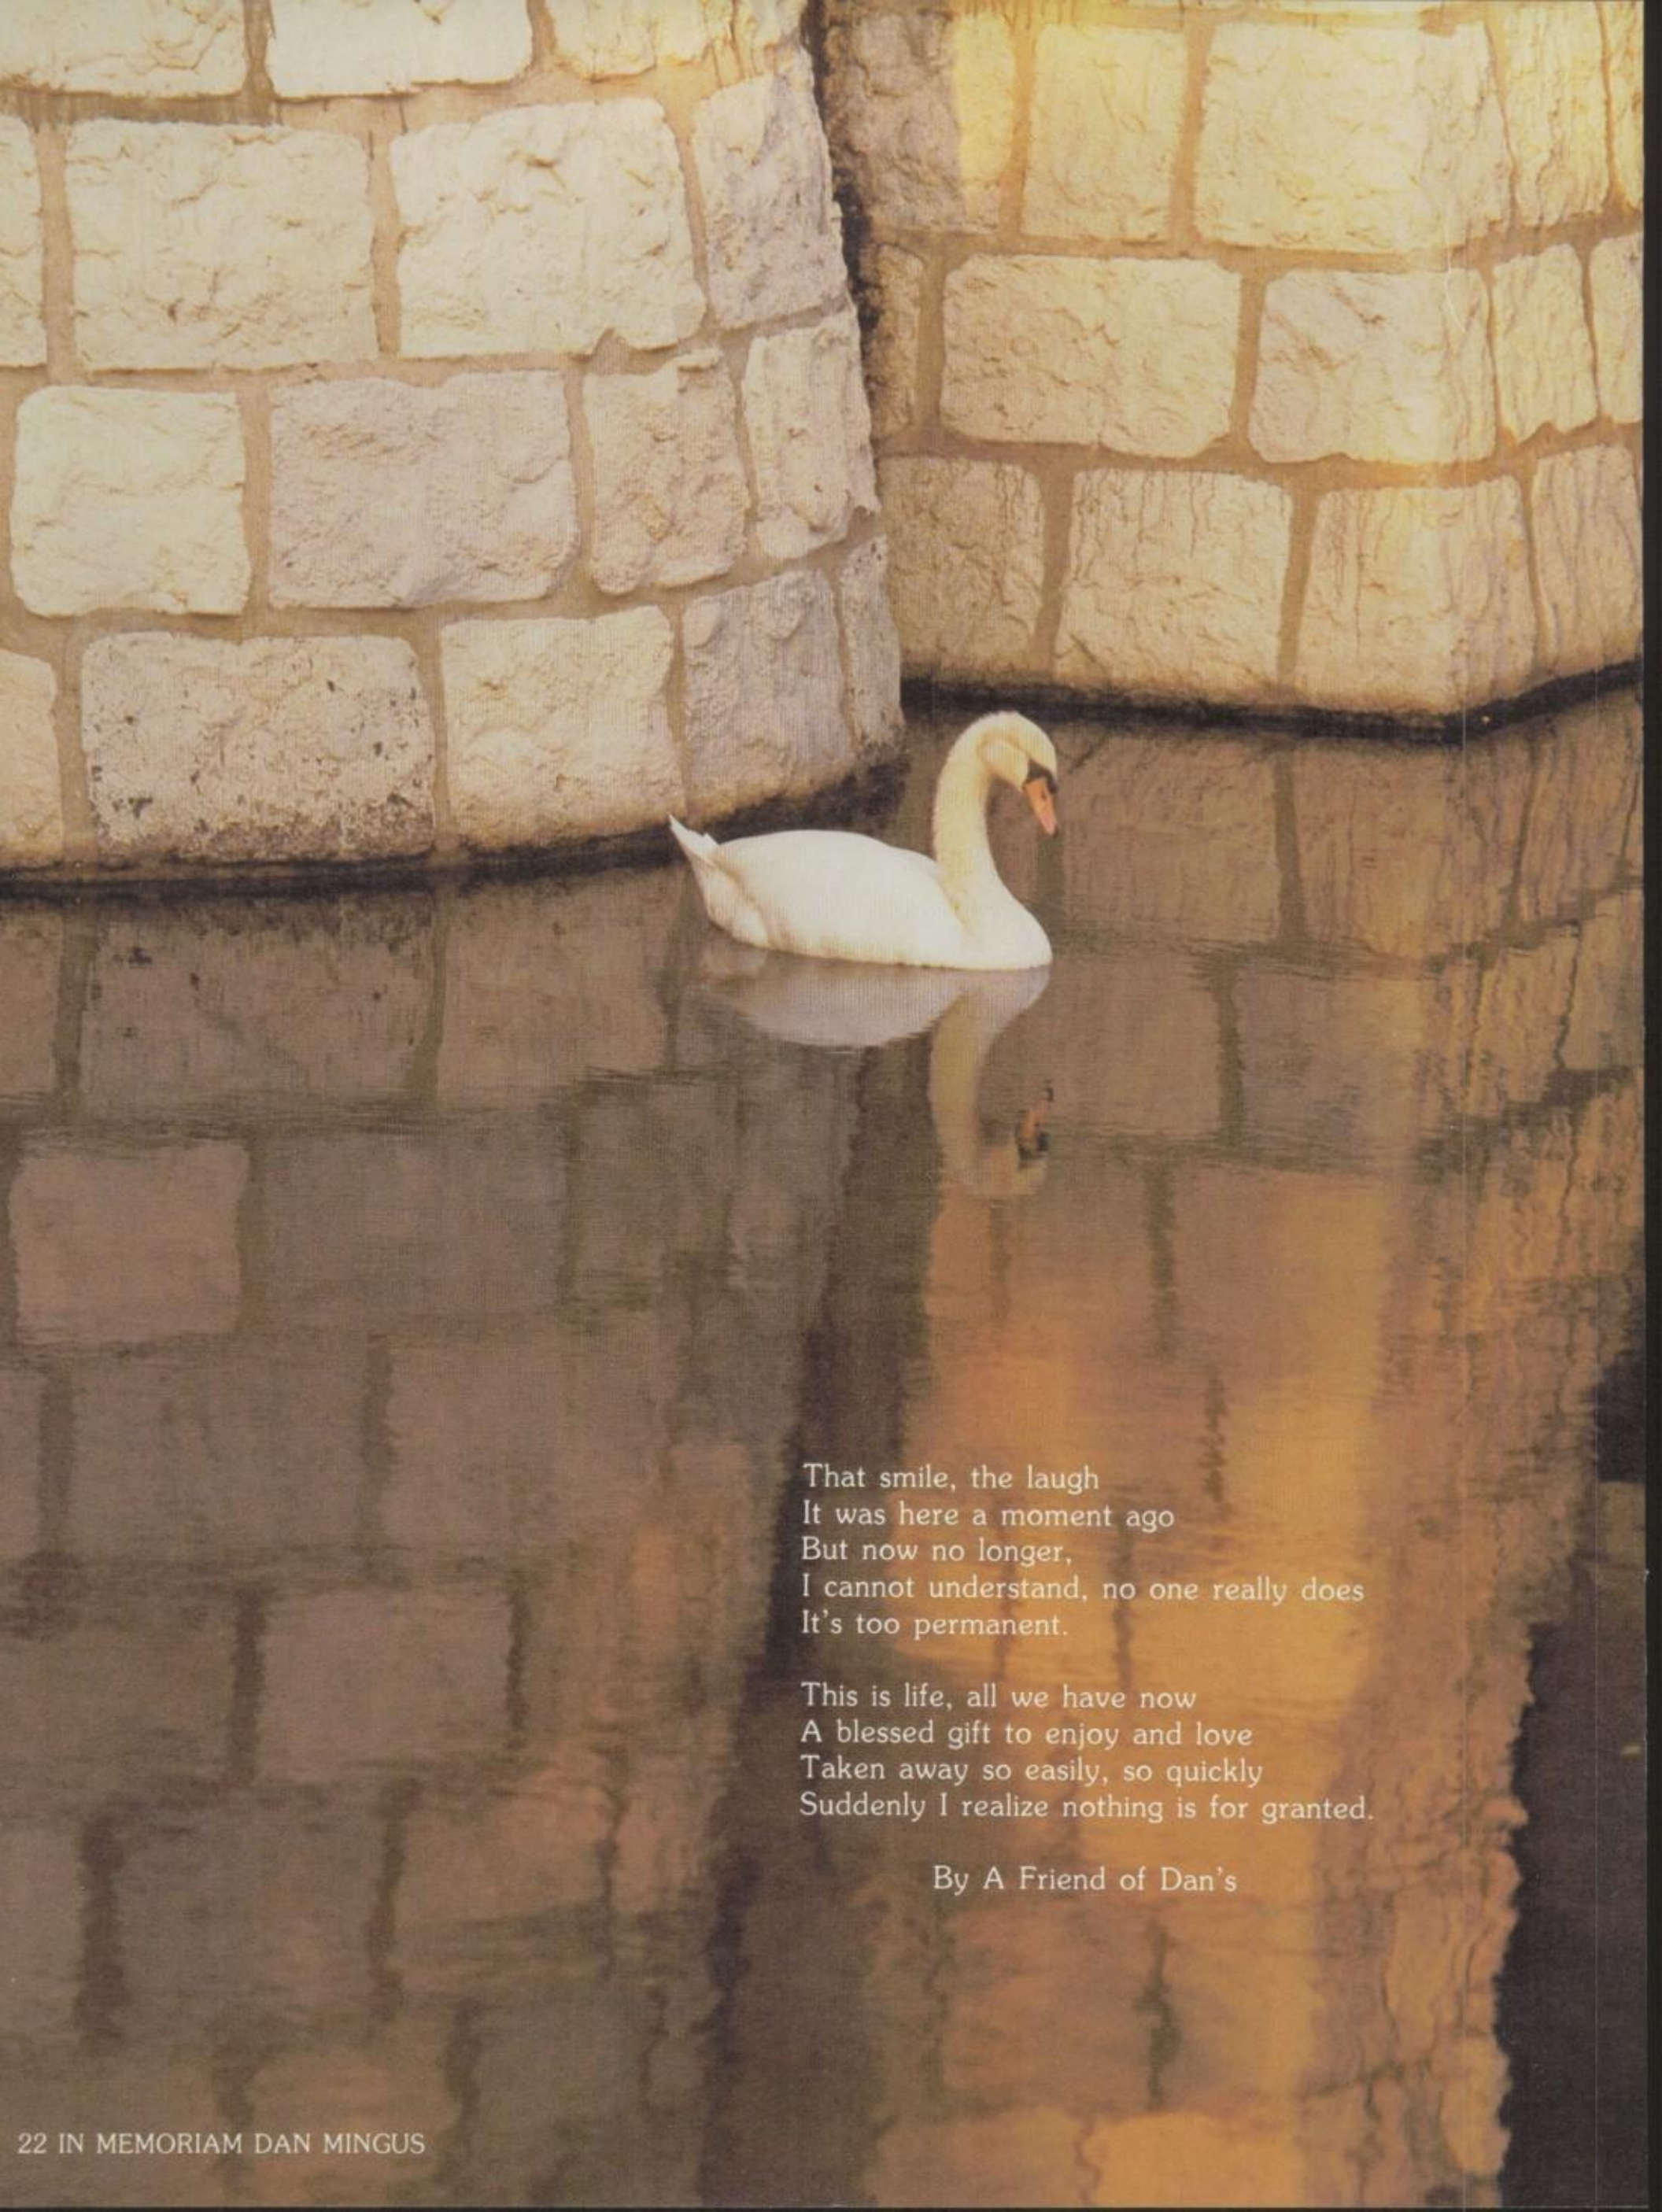
Prestigious Pals Buddy Up

by Becky Brodrick

Did you ever think that you and your best friend could ever become famous? Well there have been quite a few "best" friends who have become famous. They may have become famous through the movie or TV industry, through politics or through their own personal efforts. They may have been liked by adults and children alike. Some of the most memorable are Laurel and Hardy with their old time comedies, Bob Hope and Bing Crosby with their special musical friendship, and Dick Martin and Dan Rowen of "Laugh In" fame. America's children will always remember the Lil' Rascals and their escapades and Snoopy and Woodstock from the "Peanuts" comics and specials. Other famous couples are Clark Gable and Carole Lombard, Spencer Tracy and Katherine Hepburn, Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, The Smothers Brothers, Jerry Lewis and Dean Martin, Abbot and Costello, and Paul Simon and Art Garfunkel.

Don't break up those old friendships; someday you too might be famous!

1. 'Oh my Kermie," coos Miss Piggy to a stupefied Kermit.
2. "Pat and Mike" was one of many successful movies starring Spencer Tracy and Katherine Hepburn.
3. Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis make army life a riot.
4. Fred Astaire taps out a tune to a dazzling Ginger Rogers.
5. "On the Road to Rio", Bing Crosby and Bob Hope grimace at each other.



That smile, the laugh
It was here a moment ago
But now no longer,
I cannot understand, no one really does
It's too permanent.

This is life, all we have now
A blessed gift to enjoy and love
Taken away so easily, so quickly
Suddenly I realize nothing is for granted.

Restless Natives Shake It Up

by Robert Clayton, Prowler Staff

Over 150 students enjoyed this year's Newbury Park High School welcome dance, held Friday, September 25. To carry out an Hawaiian theme, those students dressed in attire of the islands were admitted free.

Hawaiian cake and tropical punch were available. Flashing lights, streamers, and other decorations gave the gym a tropical atmosphere.

According to Associated Student Government (ASG) president, April Vogel, ASG planned to allow free admission, knowing that it might take a loss, but hoping to encourage better attendance at future dances.

April said, "ASG plans on holding more informal dances. Some people might feel a little less inhibited if they don't have to dress up or come in couples."

Music was provided by deejay Robert Mandell, who took requests and played a few slow numbers amidst a collection of current pop and punk songs.

The chaperones for the evening, assistant principals Mr. Bill Manzer, Mrs. Madge Lamb, and teachers Mr. Washington Davis and Mr. Dick Intlekofer, enjoyed the evening's tropical atmosphere.

Open House Lures Parents.

by Rebecca Brodrick

On a warm October night, parents gathered on the campus of Newbury Park High School to participate in a three-way exchange between teachers, parents, and students. The event was Open House, a yearly happening to help parents get to know their children's teachers, and also to help various clubs advertise their usefulness to the school and to the community. At this year's Open House, the California Scholarship Federation held its traditional bake sale. This group was joined by other clubs in handing out literature to interested students and parents. At the beginning of the evening's activities, the parents gathered in the gym to hear a speech by Principal Jim DeFrates. After introducing the presidents of the Parent Faculty Association and the Site Council, Mr. DeFrates explained the goals and plans for the 1981-82 school year. Afterwards, parents visited their children's teachers and learned the goals each of them had for their classes. The mood was one of optimism.

"Buy a Yearbook! Get your Student Activity Card!" At another event of Open House, students and parents were provided a last opportunity to purchase cards and yearbooks at the year's lowest prices.

Homecoming Week came to an exciting conclusion Thursday and Friday nights with the Homecoming Game and Dance. You could feel the anticipation of the crowd as you walked into the bleachers. NP was hoping that maybe this year they would break the jinx and win the game. This hope was crushed, as the Panthers lost by only one point in double over-time to the Royal Highlanders. The Homecoming Parade and Coronation more than made up for it. The parade was colorful and exciting. The Homecoming Dance made up for the loss in its own way by letting the students rock away their frustrations. Dancing to the music of Playback, students and alumni enjoyed themselves immensely. Stars Don't Upstage Panthers

Other activities that occurred the busy week of Homecoming were two special sporting events, Powder Puff football and the Celebrity Basketball game. Powder Puff football has been a tradition at many schools throughout the country. This is a football game in which the Junior girls play the Senior girls. Newbury Park High School Juniors were coached by Greg Tipton and the Seniors were coached by Toni Hanson. The quickest runners on each team were Sheri Coushay for the Juniors and Jenny Stachura for the Seniors. After an exciting game, the final score was 15 to 2, with the Seniors proving victorious.

Celebrity Basketball was an exciting activity for all who attended. Celebrities who participated included Barry Williams, Pat Boone, and Steven Shortridge. The celebrity team's name was "Josephina's All Stars", while our team was called "The Conejo Globetrotters". The game was terribly close and proved exciting for both sides. Each team strived to overcome the other. With painful straining of overworked muscles, they charged up and down the court. The crowd waited in anticipation until the final buzzer sounded, then they cheered enthusiastically! The Conejo Globetrotters had won! The score at the end of the game was 72-67. Everybody crowded out the doors, eager to get home and tell everyone of their exciting evening. Fans with VIP tickets later joined the celebrities at a spectacular buffet organized by Mrs. Betty Marino and her very able crew of volunteers. The Celebrity Basketball game was both a great fund raiser for charity and a night of super-star entertainment.

Panthers Spook N.P.H.S.

by Rebecca A. Brodrick

Winds gutted the parking lot as Panthers hurried in order not to be late for class. Scurrying along in their homemade, handed-down or otherwise acquired costumes they glanced fearfully at the sky as if evil spirits were lurking there. Such was the mood of the day-before-Halloween as students dressed up for A.S.G. Dress Up Day at NPHS. In spite of the appropriate gloomy mood of the day, the weather was beautiful and everybody had fun laughing at each other's costume. A.S.G. sponsored a contest at lunch where all the costumed revelers paraded around in front of a panel of judges. Dressed as Raggedy Ann and Andy, Kevin Tibbetts and Lisa Whitehead won first place. An unidentified girl dressed as a devil was awarded second, and Cindy Clancy, dressed up as an old woman, won third place.

Going along with the Halloween mood, Mr. Barker again presented us with "Fat Albert," his annual pumpkin contest, in which students tried to guess the amount of seeds contained in "Fat Albert". This year's lucky guesser was Joe Capko whose guess was only four seeds away from the actual amount of 613 seeds. The prize Joe won, which was fifteen dollars, added happiness to his Halloween.

Craziness Captivates

Toward the end of 1981, students at Newbury Park High School began to catch vacation fever and joined in many of the unique activities put on this year. "Crazy Hat Day" was held. Everyone wore the craziest hats they could get their hands on. To promote the Yearbook's theme of "Here's to Good Friends" the yearbook class sponsored a balloon launch. A farewell rally was held for Mr. DeFrates to congratulate him on his promotion and new job at the District Office. All at the rally had fun watching him parade around in his grad gown.

As winter vacation time neared, everyone had fun and we captured much of the Christmas theme in our activities. To promote the holiday dance, a "red and green" day was held during which everyone who wore red and green received a discount on the admission price to the dance. A.S.G., the school secretaries and clerks, and the yearbook class presented Principal Jim Fraysier with a special balloon bouquet welcome. Miss California made the presentation personally. The selling of Christmas messages for loved ones was held on the quad at lunch. The yearbook class sold "photos with Santa". For one dollar you and your friends could sit on Santa's lap and get your picture taken. After the holidays, at the end of January, the mime Cary Trimaniche, who was so popular last year, came back for an encore performance.

Activities were unique, difficult, interesting, some out of this world, and others a good laugh. They included rallies, balloon launches, visits by different bands, numerous "dress-ups", dances, the Senior Ball, the Junior-Senior Prom, etc. There were lots of activities to join in to have fun. "We've got tonight", who needs tomorrow, were the thoughts of many students who attended the Senior Ball. Formality and friendship proved to be the ingredients of this festive occasion. Handsome, formally attired couples were inspired by the rhythms of City Limits. This year's ball was held on March 26, at the Sportsmen's Lodge in Studio City. There was an anxious wait for many because this was the first ball held in two years.

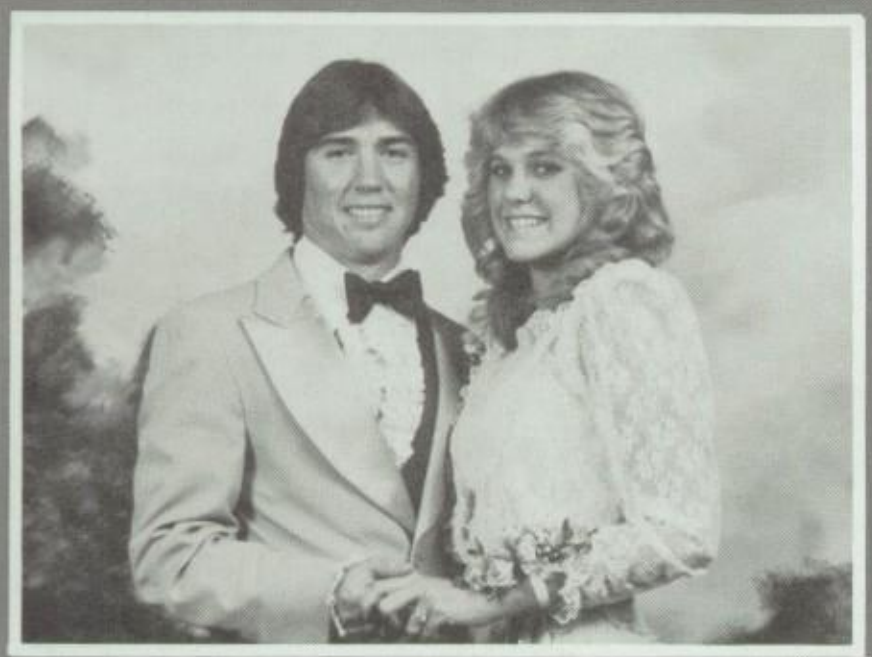
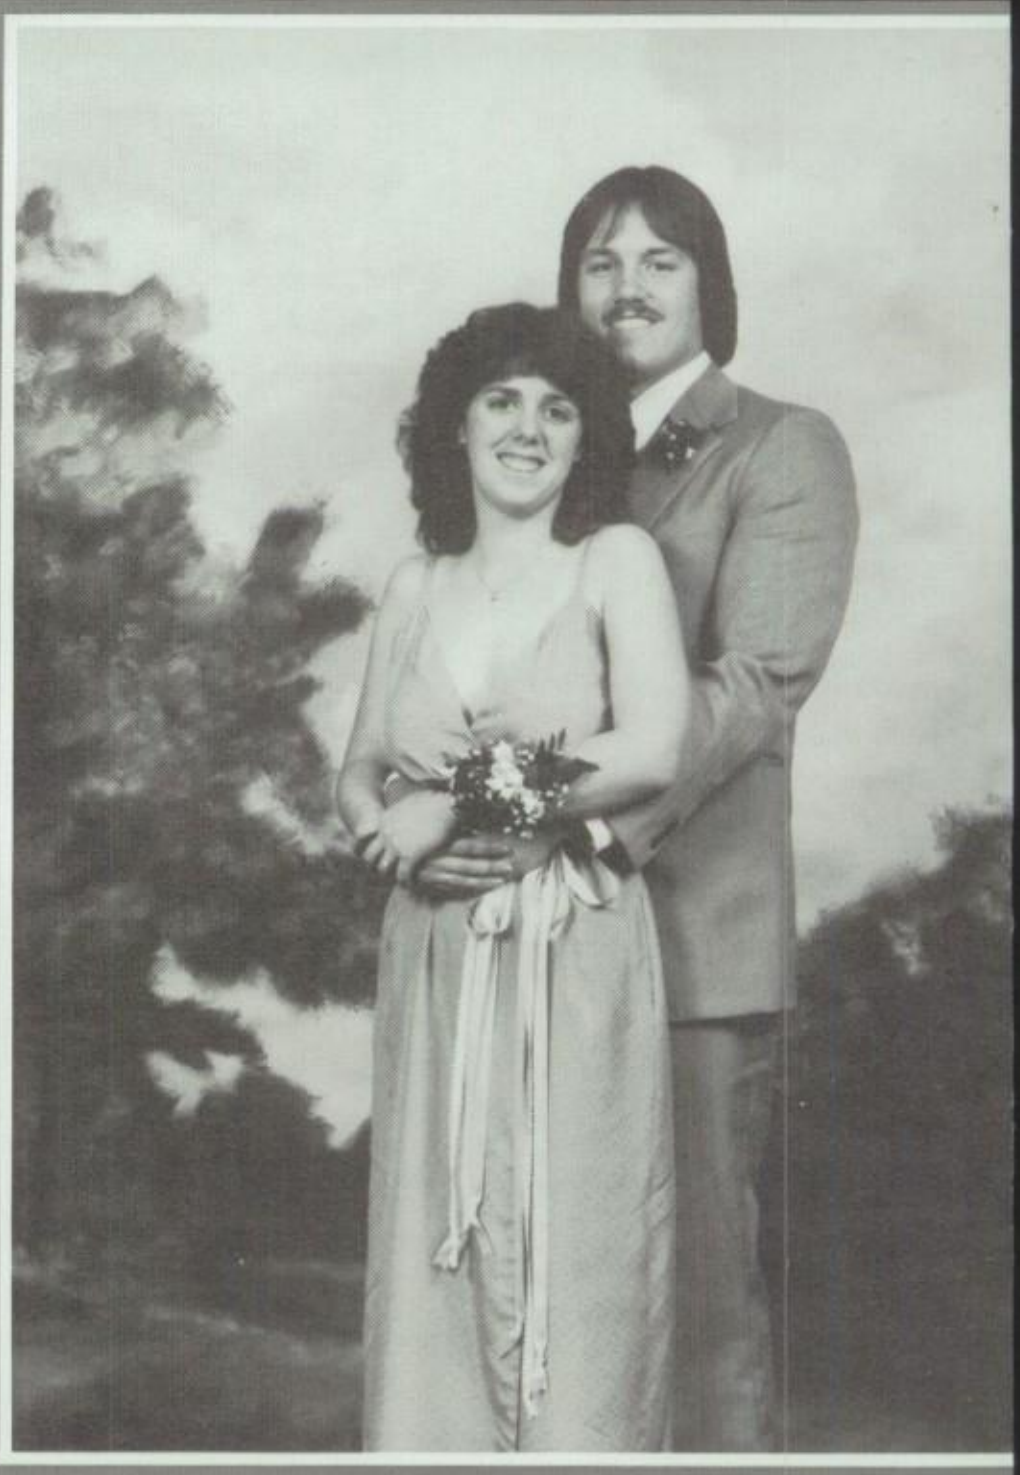
The Senior Ball was only the beginning of the spring social season, which ended with the traditional Junior-Senior Prom on May 21. The theme, "Just the Way You Are" was carried through in the decorations and the general feelings of those couples who attended. Students showed hearty approval of the Organized Crime Band. An overflow crowd danced to their music at the Odyssey in Mission Hills. This was a fitting climax to a memorable year.





We've Got Tonight

These first fifteen fabulous years were not only noticed in Newbury Park, but were nationally significant as well. The years of this socially aware and politically active era, that saw NPHS grow, were also forever etched on the hearts and minds of the world's citizens.

Visions Of Awareness

by Christie Flynn

When Newbury Park High School opened its doors in 1967, those first Panthers walked in, and with them came their thoughts and ideas; the realities that filled their world. This was the time for free speech; the era of the people; this was the time of change.

The Vietnam War was an issue in everyone's mind. It had begun several long years before and now people, young and old, had begun to take sides. There were protest rallies and picket lines, but the loudest voice of all was the ever-present peace sign.

The Haight-Ashbury District in San Francisco was the center of the Hippie Revolution, where "pad-mates" opened their minds to new awareness. Singles apartments, art deco, and nudity were "groovy", but marriage was definitely out.

The entertainment world was going places but its direction was indeterminate. Julie Andrews was the leading lady on the silver screen, closely followed by the up and coming Barbra Streisand, and Camelot was shown in theaters nationwide. Comedy was the key word for television when the Mothers-in-law, The Flying Nun, The Banana Splits, and Laugh-In all showed up on the fall line-up. The new Metropolitan Opera House opened its doors, but many people found contemporary music more pleasing to the ear. Sounds of Bob Dylan, The Rolling Stones, The Carpenters, The Beatles, and The Beach Boys filled the airwaves and rock concerts became an everyday occurrence. The Woodstock Concert (in Woodstock, N.Y.) drew 500,000 fans and lasted non-stop for three days. The musical, Hair, was simply a sign of the times.

Fashion was a melange of oddities, ranging from blue jeans and girdles for men to pants and mini-skirts for women, the latter brought into vogue by a skinny model by the name of Twiggy.

A ten cent issue of the Los Angeles Times was filled with news, and most of it bad. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., black civil rights leader had been assasinated. Senator Robert Kennedy had been assasinated. An outraged nation mourned their deaths only to mourn again: former President Dwight Eisenhower was dead.

The good news seemed meager in comparison. The first successful heart transplant had been performed. Hormonologists had accidentally stumbled onto an almost infallible birth contol method. Peggy Fleming brought home the gold medal in figure skating. When Apollo 11 successfully landed, the U.S. cheered its first men on the moon. These may have seemed like tiny, tiny steps for the world, but they were big ones for mankind.

Shake Up - Slow Down

by Christie Flynn

The early '70s, the start of a new decade, changed the late '60s trend of self-awareness to social awareness. These years began the liberation movement, ecology awareness, and coined the phrase, "the generation gap".

The 26th amendment lowered the legal voting age to 18, and students fought for the right to be heard. Noise pollution was, for a short while, determined the root of all evil. People feared that everything west of the San Andreas Fault, with the help of another devastating Los Angeles earthquake, would eventually fall into the Pacific Ocean.

Hot pants were in, mini skirts were out, and denim, in the shape of bellbottomed pants, was everywhere. Hair was still long, and getting longer, but the "shag" look was a trend on its own.

Doonesbury, an opinionated comicstrip character, gave newspaper lovers everywhere an in-a-nutshell view of politics. Euell Gibbons pushed grape-nuts, "the back to nature cereal". On T.V., Edith and Archie Bunker told it like it was on CBS' All in the Family.

The motion picture industry surprised the world with four of its best pictures: Patton, The French Connection, The Godfather, and The Sting; all won Oscars.

Sonny and Cher, a husband and wife musical-comedy duo joined the ranks of the T.V. lineup; their show: a blend of risque costumes and spirited entertainment. Soon after, M*A*S*H, a dark comedy about an army MASH unit in the Korean War, came to prime time.

Mazda's new rotary engine was in the news, and in the money. Skylab went up, Walt Disney World in Florida opened its doors, and the Dove, a small sloop, was sailed around the world by one man. With the Polaroid SX-70, you could have your photos in a minute; they popped right out of the camera and developed before your eyes.

Wholesome singer John Denver thanked God he was a country boy. Swimmer Mark Spitz and gymnast Cathy Rigby made us all proud by their performances in the terror filled 1972 Munich Olympics. You could have it your way at Burger King, and that, together with the end of the Vietnam War, made a lot of people pretty happy.

Life In A Diamond Lane

by Christie Flynn

The mid '70s formed a crisis period for most people. It was a political crisis for some, a social crisis for others. But, for most people it was a crisis "gasolinus", in other words, a gas crunch.

Special lanes on some freeways were designated "diamond lanes" to encourage, and only be used by, carpools. The odd-even gas rationing program was put into effect and the price per gallon rose to almost 80 cents.

The first resignation of a U.S. President occurred when Nixon was incriminated in the Watergate scandal and Gerald Ford became President for the remainder of Nixon's term.

Newspaper heiress Patty Hearst was kidnapped and forced into participating with the Simbeanese Liberation Army in several bank heists.

The Beatles were breaking up, The Sears Tower was going up, and the comet Kohoutek was passing us by. The Captain and Tennille were getting together, Robert Redford and Barbra Streisand were reminiscing about The Way We Were, Jaws was biting the biggest hole out of moviegoers' pockets, and Carl Douglas just said "everybody was Kung Fu Fighting". Elton John told the world about Pinball wizards, Rodney Allen Rippey told us about Jumbo Jacks, and somebody told us to talk to our plants.

The Super Bowl attracted a record 56 million viewers. Pet rocks were found to be the most obedient pets. Junk Food Junkies could be found anywhere, wearing anything from platform shoes to mood rings to Wallabies. The two dollar bill was the uncommon rate of exchange.

The nation's Bicentennial put all eyes on the whole country for the spectacular show. The U.S. sent Viking 1 to Mars. Randy Newman's Short People caused a big uproar. Gymnast Nadia Comenici of Romania received the first ever score of 10 in the Olymics, and surprised the world by doing it several times. Ice skater Dorothy Hamill brought home a few medals of her own and the U.S. won all the Nobel Prizes. We applauded loudly Alex Haley's Roots, became sick to death of Legionaires' Disease, and were shocked and sorrowed at the death of Elvis Presley.

T.V. welcomed back Kotter, though from where we didn't know, and Happy Days were here, bringing the world Fonzie. Californians prayed for rain as the drought continued. C.W. McCall's Convoy was the theme song for many truckers, who said "that's a big 10-4" to C.B. radios.

Pharaoh's Fawcett Leaks

The late '70s were more than just the end of another decade. They were years of learning, enjoying, and experiencing new things; years of being entertained, keeping fit, testing new ideas, and doing things that turned out to be illegal. These were the years of rollercoaster mania, granola, geothermal energy, and pyramid parties.

The motion picture industry was booming and the silver screen was hit with box office smash after smash. Star Wars was proclaimed number one, but Rocky was fighting his way to the top, and Smokey and the Bandit were racing up from the rear. A Star Is Born was the latest love story, Saturday Night Fever started the disco craze, and everyone wanted to have Close Encounters of the Third Kind.

Everything from jogging and yogurt consciousness to fad diets proclaimed the fitness generation was approaching the impressionable age. Skateboards, boogie boards, and roller skates became the most popular forms of transportation, although a moped might get you where you wanted to go.

Farrah Fawcett-Majors had the hottest pin-up ever, besides having a very popular hair style, and Charlie's Angels had Farrah. The Dallas Cowboys' Cheerleaders were the first of their kind, and even electronic football couldn't steal their fans. Musician Peter Frampton, actor Shaun Cassidy, and triple crown winning jockey Steve Cauthen were the latest heart throbs, but they all said, "Oh, no!" to Mr. Bill and Mr. Hand.

We tuned out Mr. Whipple; turned on the New Mouseketeers, Mork and Mindy (nanu-nanu), The Muppets, and Donahue; turned up Supertramp, Queen, and Dolly Parton; turned out for Annie, A Chorus Line, our flu shots, waterslides, and Colossus; and turned down the Susan B. Anthony dollar.

President Carter's peanut farm was in the news, Carter Country was on ABC, and the Billy Carter scandal was put in the open.

Proposition 13 was on the ballot, the Alaskan Pipeline was in the works, Love Canal was in trouble, and just when you thought it was safe to go back into the water, after the oil spills, Jaws II came along.

A streaker raced through the Academy Awards, all in the name of good clean fun, but RSO Productions just said "Grease is the word."

If the return of odd-even gas rationing was getting you down and the thought of a test tube baby was freaking you out, you just went to see your analyst.

Jane Fonda was making picture after smashing picture, King Tut was on his way to L.A. and little Gary Coleman was quickly becoming our favorite comedian. The Thorn Birds was on the bestseller list, fiber optics was no longer a thing of the future, and the Panama Canal was no longer ours.

Sitting back and relaxing in our hot tubs, we looked to the sky to pray, "Don't let Skylab fall on me!"

Happy Anniversary, Baby

Let's Celebrate!

The world felt it; the people knew: the 1980s had come in with a bang.

At the Winter Olympics in Lake Placid, N.Y., U.S. ice skater Eric Heiden took the gold in both speed-skating and relay. The U.S. hockey team beat Russia to take another gold. Pride was swelling to a fever pitch in both team members and fans alike until an injury to ice skater Randy Gardiner kept him and Ti Babalonia from competition. The Summer Olympics in Moscow was boycotted by the U.S. for political reasons.

Gold prices were going up, the radiation at 3-mile Island was leaking out, and the Malibu Rock was supposedly on its way down. When Mount St. Helen's blew her top, she had quite a few people bothered, but the Iranian hostage crisis really shook things up.

Manditory retirement seemed at an end. The Empire was Striking Back, and Yoda was the big hero, until a few gray-haired Trekkies showed up in Star Trek-The Movie. Bo Derek was a "10", Miss Piggy had a pinup of her own, and a fictitious muse came to life in Xanadu, but that was only in the movies. The Real People were the preppies, the punk rockers, and the Urban Cowboys.

From Kenny Rogers to AC/DC and Adam and the Ants, music lovers tuned in for a Journey to another Air Supply. But in the eyes of Billy Joel, it was all Still Rock-n-Roll.

We saw the coming of Pope John Paul I, and shortly after, Pope John Paul II. The attempted assasination of Pope John Paul, as well as that of President Reagan drew anger from us, and we prayed for the injured press secretary James Brady hoping he would make a complete recovery.

Sugar Ray Leonard was the man to beat, Richard Simmons told us to "live it" for our health, and aerobic dancing was the new way to shape up. Rubik's cube could be conquered in less than thirty seconds. Pac-Man fever could be caught with the drop of a quarter, but General Hospital's Luke and Laura had sparked "soap" fever. The marriage of Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer had the world in a whirl, and the thought of a royal baby brought smiles to peoples' faces.

As you move on in the '80s to new and different ideas, keep one thing in mind: if you don't get zapped at the laserium, watch out for those Bette Davis Eyes!

Hot Funk, Cool Punk, Even If It's Old Junk

The first actor turned President, Ronald Reagan, sparked a legion of jelly bean connoisseurs with his fetish for the candy.

Evita drew theater lovers to its resounding performance, Shogun was enjoyed by millions of T.V. viewers and Fernando Valenzuela was the player of the year until the baseball strike forced the shutout of his fans.

The Space Shuttle went up, acid rain was falling down, and the Med-fly had everyone buzzing. The death of John Lennon got a lot of people reminiscing about All Those Years Ago, and saw three ex-Beatles who mourned his passing.

Panthers

Each day, rain or shine, Newbury Park Performing Arts could be seen either in the classroom singing or learning lines, or out on the field, strutting their stuff. Endless hours of practice and a lot of hard work contributed to Newbury Park's excellence. These talented performers maintained the high standards of Panther spirit, either on or off the field, on stage, or at a rally.

Marching Panthers

by Ginny Montenegro

Everyday in the band room, you could hear fifty band members sweating away to perform at their very best. They worked so very hard day after day, to get just the right sound to please Mr. Pete Fisher, themselves, and of course, the judges for the next parade they would be competing in. The band members were off to a good start their first competition. They came home from the Camarillo Christmas parade, with smiles on their faces from ear to ear, holding the First Place trophy. They were certainly proud of that trophy, but the very next day, they were back to their seats, getting out their song sheets, and practicing for the next event they would be performing in. We here at N.P.H.S. are certainly proud of our aggressive N.P.H.S. Panther Band members. Keep up the good work.

Drill Team Is Style

Being entertained by the N.P.H.S. Panther Drill Team was always an exciting experience. Those girls spent many long hours learning original routines for football games, half-time shows, and parades. Every year Drill Teamers have shown the Panther spirit at numerous parades. Included among these were the Homecoming Parade, the Camarillo Christmas Parade, the Ventura County Parade, and the Conejo Valley Day's Parade. Each and every performance was dazzling. The long hours of hard work paid off. Captain Kelly Hamon, 1st lieutenant Patty McGlothlin, and 2nd lieutenant Cathie Campbell could vouch for that. Working with their advisor, Mrs. Cora Chapman, the Drill Team always aimed for excellence. Good friendships were formed during the hundreds of hours they dedicated to making the Team an award winner.

Cheerleading was a big part of the Newbury Park spirit. The Varsity, J.V., and Freshman cheerleaders and Mascot did a great job. Their involvement guaranteed a more enthusiastic crowd and more motivated team. Setting high standards and building a strong squad were goals set by the cheerleaders. From the anxious moments of try-outs through the seemingly endless hours of practice, the hundreds of cheers and special routines performed during games, the cheerleaders learned many important lessons. They gained knowledge, friendships, and self awareness. Somewhere in-between all the activity, each girl grew and found a little more to add to the success of the squad. Each girl will always cherish her involvement in fostering school spirit. The cheerleaders proved they were specialists in spirit.

Singing Is Believing

Starting with their natural talents, the gifted performers of Newbury Park's song and dance company developed a very impressive repertoire. Committing long hours to classwork and after-school rehearsals, they improved their individual singing abilities. What proved even more important to their many audiences throughout the year, was the cohesiveness that developed within the group. Black Orpheus, Mixed Chorus, and Vocal Ensemble performed with precision, balance, and unity. Thursday night concerts, special guest appearances, and school performances provided opportunities for the groups to share the enjoyment they have in performing. These efforts met with critical acclaim.

Comedy And Tragedy

Following the spectacular success of last year's "Westside Story", the drama department decided that "Pirates of Penzance" would be the spring production for 1982. The famous Gilbert and Sullivan operetta had had a recent revival on Broadway with Linda Ronstadt, Barry Boswick, and George Rose starring. Los Angeles audiences had seen the production starring Pam Dawber, Andy Gibb, and Boswick in a reprise of his role as the pirate king. Newbury Park's production, which ran Thursday through Saturday, April 22-24 and April 29 through May 1, was one of the most challenging musicals the drama department had attempted. With lavish sets, special costuming, and an extensive cast, "Pirates" rated as one of NP's most ambitious undertakings. Audiences responded very enthusiastically. The policy of reserved seating added to the public's enjoyment of the musical.

John Ledwon noted how pleased he was with every member of the production. He remarked that everyone had met the many challenges and that all had performed to their very best. With the movie version soon to be released, it was a real compliment to the two casts that people in the audience wondered aloud if the movie would be as good. Congratulations "pirates"!

Friends Can Make

Friends contribute a great deal to our lives whether we realize it or not. Just to have someone to talk to is a tonic for all ills. Waking up to a bad day can be OK if we have someone to share it with. That big calculus test can be easier to study for if we have someone to study with. That talk with the principal can be turned from tragedy to comedy with that special friend. Our mental health sometimes depends on having someone to unload upon who will understand that we are not angry with them. Life can be so frustrating sometimes that we may want to smash walls; friends can make life easier by just being there. From elementary school to college, friends will always be there to help us. When we enter the wide world, the friends we have had by us all along, will stick by us and that will mean a lot. Friends can make each day a new beginning.

Charlie Douglass and Ed Gillaspie shout, "Look Mom, it's me!"

For Always

Everyone has that special friend who shared their hopes and dreams and who was there in the time of need. The friend who did that one big favor for you is the one who will always be remembered. After graduation we must keep in touch. A friend is not just for once, a friend is for always. Look back and remember sure, but also look forward to the new experiences we can share together in the future. Remember all the good times and then build on that. Create even better times today. A friend is for life, so remember to keep in touch!

Cut to nightmare: you are staring into the face of your counselor as he calmly tells you one of three things. a) you failed half your classes and you won't graduate until you're twenty. b) you have ninety more credits to go c) he can't find anything that proves you have been in school for the past four years. You wake up screaming or in a cold sweat and you realize it was just a dream. You pull yourself together and start off blissfully for your graduation rehearsal.

As soon as you arrive however, you run into your counselor and you get this awful feeling that your dream is about to become reality. "Hello," he says, with a grin on his face. This terrifies you even more. "Do you think you could come speak to me this afternoon? It's rather important."

"Oh my . . . ," you breathe. Suddenly you have this feeling that any minute you will have heart failure or at least pass out. You try to be so strong and you make an appointment to see your counselor that afternoon. You've gone this far, you say to yourself. You're about to leave high school and enter that big, beautiful world. You're not about to let anybody tell you you can't. That visit to the counselor was not nightmarish at all. At graduation that night, you laugh to yourself about the silly fears you had that afternoon. You remember that you've got a long, nearly endless stretch ahead of you called the rest of your life, in which to do your worrying. Even so, one part of your life is over, and the best is yet to come.

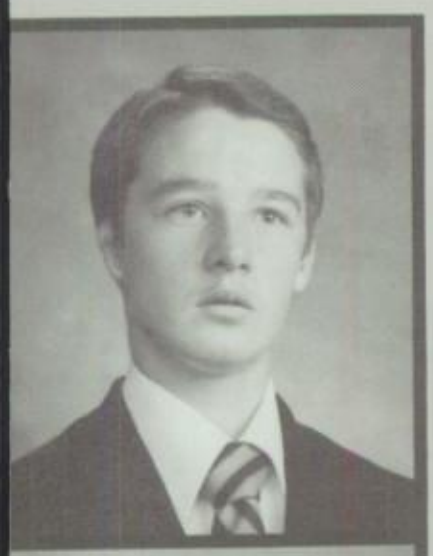
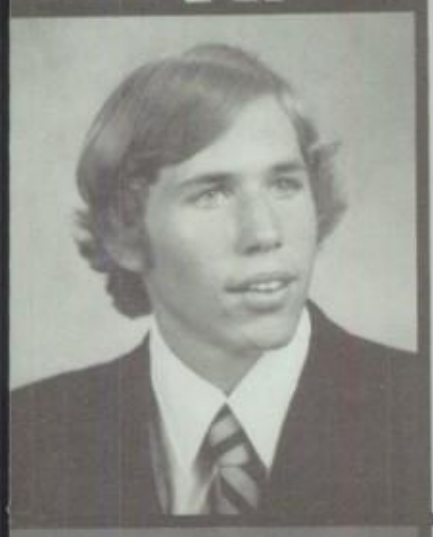
Paying Off





by Barbi Severs

What you get from life is exactly what you've put into it. The 1982 seniors found that all the hard work they put into high school was finally paying off. "It didn't just happen," said Jenny McElvany.

College acceptances, report cards, new jobs, and scholarships were concrete results. People of today need concrete results to feel they have accomplished something. Many seniors realized that as soon as they leave high school nobody will be there to push them but themselves. Two comments from seniors were, "It's scary." and "It's an exciting challenge." They've realized that life is important. It's not one big party. High school prepared them the best way it knew how. Seniors either took it in or they rebelled against it. Teachers encouraged them to work hard, and if they did it hopefully showed in their grades. A person can also feel it inside himself when he knows he's done something good.

Congratulations to the Class of 1982. They did a fine job. Their hard work is paying off.

New student Lisa Fackrell studies hard to succeed at N.P.H.S.

Looking Forward

by Cheryl Charette

On the night of graduation, many seniors stop for a few moments to reflect on their past year and the special moments it contained. They try to grasp each joyful and maybe even sad memory before it slips away and becomes just another event in their life. This year will be previous ones, with some seniors reluctantly leaving behind their memories to start out fresh, while others will eagerly leave the past twelve years behind. When I asked some seniors what they felt had been the most important and/or happiest event in the past years, the answers varied greatly.

"Just being able to get out of school and start life!"; "I feel that making new friends was the most important."; "The happiest moment for me would be being accepted by the college of my choice."; "For me it would have to be the Senior Ball — it was terrific."; "I guess finally making it after 12 years!"; and "I think just being a part of the Class of '82; we're #1!!!"

The last comment sums up the feelings of many seniors. It shows the pride of this class which really strived to be #1. When it's time to receive their diplomas, each senior will look back at what they've accomplished, but even more, they will look forward to tomorrow.

Dreaming ahead to the future, Lisa Constant wears space age glasses.

Them Realities

Everybody dreams. Some people dream dreams that can never come true. Other people dream of accomplishing something in life. That is especially true of seniors in high school. The difference sometimes in making these dreams come true is whether we have a friend to help support us. Friends can mean the difference between losing a dream and keeping one and making it a reality. Friends can keep our selfconfidence up when the dream is beginning to fade. Even better, friends can help keep our feet on the ground when we finally reach that pinnacle of success. It is even better when your best friend and you share the same dream and can work together towards that dream. This is a great help to both of you. You can support each other in those blue days and can cheer each other on in better days.

Sitting under a tree, Joe LaFreniere dreams of future realities as he works to accomplish them.

If friends are the leaves on the tree of life, then my tree is the greenest, fullest, lushest of them all. It adds new leaves, and the old may change color, but they never fall.

One of the biggest moments we have to share with family and friends is graduation. That is the one time all of us have been looking forward to throughout high school — from our freshman year to our senior year. This wonderful moment will be one of laughter and tears. In this one moment we will be filled with joy and apprehension: joy that high school is finally over and apprehension that we may not make it in the outside world. There will be laughter and tears. This event will rank in our lives with going out on our first real date, with marriage, and even with the birth of children. As we, dressed in our caps and gowns, receive our diplomas this great happening will be etched in our minds forever. Such moments are forever.

Sharing Your

Everybody knows that good times and good friends go hand in hand. Something that people often overlook is that good friends also help you through the bad times. Something that appears to be a total disaster can be outrageously funny when discussed later with your good friend or "partner in crime". Even when there is nothing to do, wasting time with a good friend is so much better than being alone. Sharing your thoughts and reminiscing about days gone by are ways to spend time with your friends. Whether your moments are spent quietly together or on the town during a Friday night, good friends will always be good friends.

Mary Murphy shares her thoughts with others through pictures.

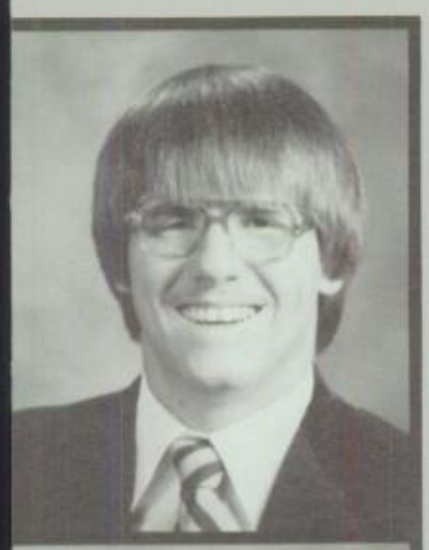
A Success



by Mike Spiva

To me, making it in life means getting a good education, having a satisfying job, raising a family, and just living well. It means good fortune and self-respect.

Being successful in the immediate future means having a good reputation, not doing anything I'll regret later. I need to do what I think is right. I need to do what will make me a person I will like and be proud of as I grow older.

Having the ambition to succeed is very important if you want to make it in life. If you don't have the attitude to make it in life, you won't. You also have to be willing to make sacrifices in order to succeed.

People who succeed in life keep trying and they keep busy. Whether they're working or playing on a sports team, they earn a good reputation by being independent and reliable. These aren't people who loaf or procrastinate. They are the ones others feel they can count on.

Success in life, to me, most of all, is just having my parents proud of who I am and what I have accomplished.

Special memories come from good times shared withclose friends. Good times and friends just naturally go together like Santa Claus and Rudolf or Easter and the Easter Bunny. Special memories have that special something that comes from good times and good friends. Sometimes that something is being crazy and wearing something weird to school and having your best friend fall in love with it and wear the same thing the next day. That thing might be getting a new hair do and knowing that your best friend will not crack up laughing and that you will have someone to walk around with that day. Of all the memories from high school the ones shared with special friends will be the ones remembered the most.

Just clowning around, that's Janell Ameduri.

Friends and memories will be with us forever. The times that we've shared through high school are some of the most important and challenging times of our lives. These times will always be remembered. We will remember the bad times when our best friend was always there. We will especially remember that we were always together, sharing the good times. However, soon after graduation the thoughts of high school will fade as we enter the "real" world. We will lose track of most of our old friends, but hopefully we will always keep a few. Years from now we will look back and find that our friends have become memories, good memories, forever.

MAKING IT A SUCCESS by Robbie Asghar

For most students, a high school diploma holds a specal meaning: it marks the end of a four year struggle with books, teachers, and the entire education system. Some students will start the entire process all over again when they enter college, but others will abstain from higher education and will wade through the job market immediately following graduation.

To a graduate, the job market is a huge circus that offers mostly the lower end of the job hierarchy. Although it's sometimes possible to work one's way up to a high position on the company ladder, those who try this method are, more often than not, unsuccessful. Good careers virtually always demand adequate experience or a college degree, typically both. Thus, the most practical thing to do after secondary school is to enroll in a center for higher education. It will help you to find a proper career, and more importantly, it offers knowledge that is fundamental to a technological society.

As the high school diploma allows the doors to the world to finally be opened, many graduates rush out to take a blind stab at success without even knowing the meaning of the word. Is it an abundance? A 60-foot yacht? A spouse and children (or better yet, no spouse and no children)? No. True success is a contentment with the world, the ability to make a contribution to it, and the ability to win the respect of peers. This form of success is far more valuable than the common version that sanctifies wealth and power, and regardless of post-graduate and career choices, it is the only valid form by which to measure oneself.

Friendship Is Like A Rose, It Blossoms And Grows
by Ginny Montenegro

Have you ever thought about the meaning of a rose? A rose starts out small as a bud, and with every day it grows and grows. It starts blooming, and from that tiny bud it blooms into a beautiful rose. That's what friendship is all about. You meet a beautiful person; at first it's only a small acquaintanceship. That small acquaintanceship begins to grow. Eventually it grows into a beautiful friendship.

The Junior girls played the Senior girls in a Powder Puff football game on Monday, October 19, during Homecoming week. Spectators showed a lot of spirit and had fun rooting on their teams. Both teams pushed and packed and held the line. They played tough and had a great time. The seniors came out on top with the final score, 15-2.

A spirited cheerleader for her three years at NPHS, Erin Hickman was chosen Junior Class Princess. After being informed that she had won the title, she exclaimed, "I felt honored to represent the Junior Class." When he was asked how he felt about winning his title, Junior Class Prince, Mike Hand, replied, "At first I was shocked, and then I felt honored." Mike played football as a freshman, sophomore, and junior. The Junior Class was well represented by this spirited couple during Homecoming.

Junior Poll

by Jill Wilhelm

Doing something different, the Yearbook staff asked the Juniors to answer a short questionaire in their English classes. The questionaire was drawn up by the Junior section staff members, who based it on the Yearbook's theme, "Here's to Good Friends." The purpose of the questionaire was to get some insight into the thoughts of the average Junior. Because the questionaire was anonymous, Juniors were free to express themselves without being pressured. Of those many who responded to the questionaire, the most answered question was "Describe What Friendship Means to You."

Some students composed lengthy answers, while some preferred just one or two sentences. All were good in quality, for obviously friendship holds a special place among the Juniors. Juniors were also asked "What Meaning Would Life Have Without Friends?" Most replied, "None" or "Not Much." All agreed that life would be dull and boring without friends. The Junior spirit proved to excel not only at school rallies but in everyday life. We asked the Juniors to describe the Class of '83. The replies were "Excellent" followed by "Awesome" and "The Best." 1982 was full of new acquaintances and "Friendships." The Juniors truly upheld the Yearbook's theme, "Here's to Good Friends."

Although Journey originated in the San Francisco Bay area, they certainly are not strangers here in Newbury Park! In fact, Steve Perry (lead singer) came from the Conejo Valley. Steve Perry joined Journey right before the release of "Infinity". "Infinity" was the first album which included Steve Perry at vocals. The next release was "Departure", followed by the "live" album "Captured". In the poll, Journey took all the #1 positions.

1. Journey's "Escape" album
2. Journey: Steve Perry, Ross Valory, Johnathan Cain, Neal Schon, and Steve Smith

Sophomores

by Teresa L. Kachocki

Being a sophomore can be an exciting as well as a frustrating experience. No longer are you a freshman, yet neither are you an upperclassman. Now you're known only as an upper-lower classman.

You have no more privileges than a freshman, yet you feel more responsible in your own mind. Even though you may have only two more years of high school remaining, it feels like a lifetime.

However, before you know it, you'll be graduating and then it's on to a totally new life. Your Sophomore year will soon be but a memory among many you will always cherish for the rest of your life. It's a memory that will remain forever.

A Wonderful Memory

by Teresa L. Kachocki

Being elected Sophomore Class Homecoming Prince or Princess can be a very exciting experience, one which will surely be remembered for many years to come. These were the feelings of Kevin Petit and Sheryl Cole, this year's Sophomore Class Prince and Princess.

Kevin and Sheryl, along with the Princes and Princesses of the Freshman, Junior and Senior classes, will forever cherish this honor. For each of them, it will always be a wonderful memory upon which to reflect.

1. Lunchtime finds another group eating their lunches on campus.
2. Catherine Webb and friends enjoy lunch.

by Caroline Lichtenstein

The change concerning off-campus passes affected the sophomores more than any other class. In the past, all classes were granted the privilege of going off campus for lunch.

However, due to a survey conducted by the Ventura County Sheriff's Dept., the school board decided not to allow freshmen and sophomores this opportunity. The survey stated that petty theft had increased since the two classes had been given the privilege.

The Sophomore class grew outraged at this decision. They felt they had been treated unfairly. They felt cheated because they had never been given a chance to show their responsibility. One sophomore said, "We were declared guilty before a trial!"

Mr. Manzer, one of the assistant principals, was quoted as saying, "...the only way to keep (the students) from leaving campus is to have guard dogs on duty." He then laughingly added that even that would not keep some people on campus.

Another reason the students were denied the off-campus privilege was the continued tardiness to class. This often occurred because students wanted to go across town to the T.O. Taco Bell. The "rush hour" traffic prevented them from being back in time for their 6th period classes.

After having the opportunity to express their views, the sophomores accepted the situation with mature dignity. They have found themselves eating lunch on campus and hoping that in the future they will be allowed off campus.

Have you ever walked around the campus and felt as though you were going through some wild maze, where at the end you will receive some wonderful prize? You wander about as though you don't know which way to turn next. There are doors all around you. Which is the one you want? Which one has that wonderful prize? You can't go in one door, so you try another. No, that's not it. Where is it? Then suddenly you've reached the end of the maze. This is where you find it, that wonderful prize! As you open the door, slowly, cautiously, "Bam!" it hits you! You have found what's at the end . . . CLASS!

The Freshman class was spirited and enthusiastic. Led by their officers, President Karen Schulz, V.P. Dianna Cone, Secretary Dawn DeMattia, and Treasurer Jennifer Murray, the Class of 85 established itself as actively involved in all areas of school life. Working to increase student involvement, a special project of the Enhancement Program, freshmen participated in all activities. Undaunted by differences and new surroundings, the Freshman class persevered.

With the arrival of the Freshman Class of 85, Newbury Park was given a new horizon. The school was provided with a lot of surprises because we freshmen were never afraid to express our originality. We were also the ones who showed a lot of class and style. For us, 1982 was the beginning of many years of wonderful memories and close friends never to be forgotten. To associate with all the "too hip" sophomores, juniors, and seniors was fantastic even though we were freshmen, and the only class to be remembered for having Scouby Doo lunch boxes (at least we didn't have Fred Flintstone lunch boxes).

This year was a beautiful beginning for the Class of '85. It was terrific!

Freshman students accented the meaning of pride by taking part in Homecoming week. They attended the rallies, the celebrity basketball game, the football game and parade, and the Homecoming Ball. Steve Meyer and Michelle Wagner were chosen as the Class of 85's prince and princess. Michelle was a member of the girls' basketball team and a football stat girl. Steve Meyer played on the Frosh football team. Other nominees for Frosh Prince and Princess were Pat Doyle, Todd Trapani, Vicki Andrews, and Amber Lowry.

Working with a large group of enthusiastic volunteers, and the inspiring help of their advisor, Mrs. Randy Stewart, the freshmen produced a spectacular float. It was so good in fact, it won first place at the Homecoming Parade. The freshman cheerleaders lent their spirited abilities to the two main sporting events that busy week. Homecoming week and the freshmen were a great combination. The Class of 85 will go forth with its pride.

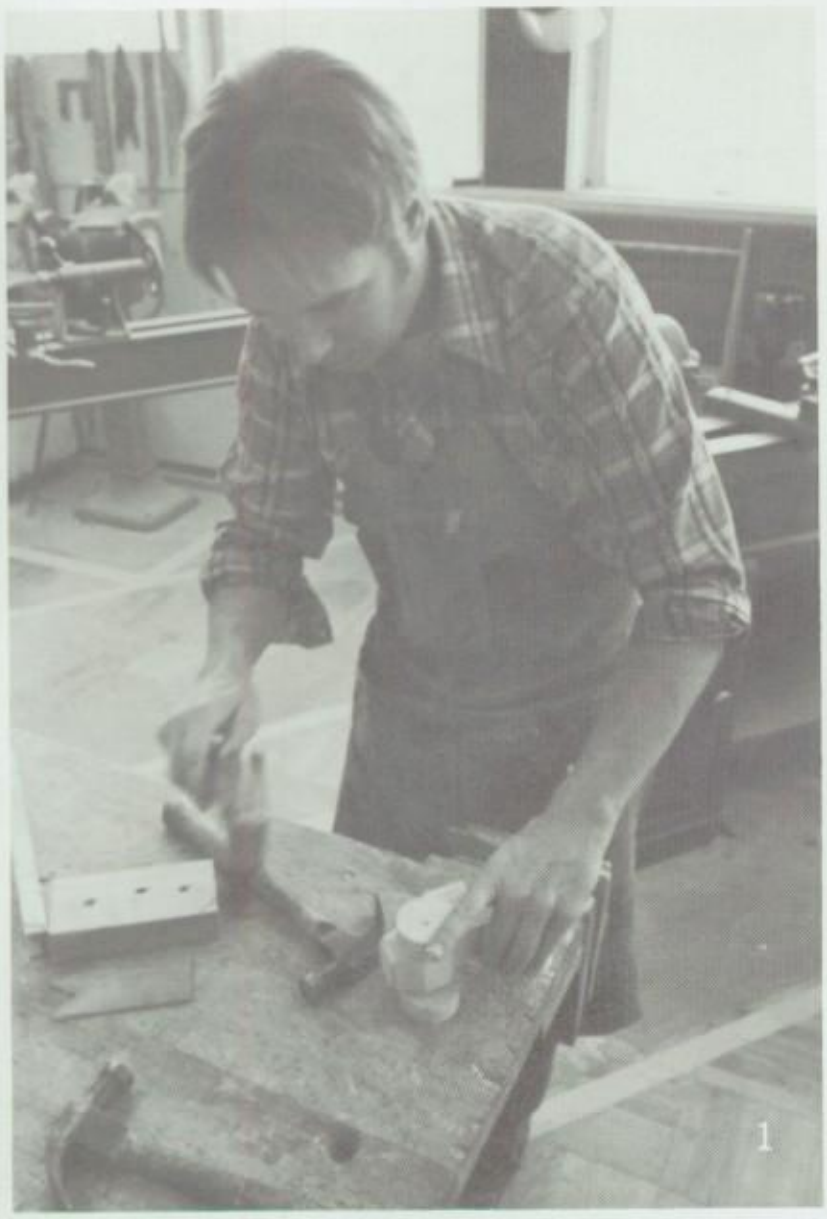
The Making Of . . .



by Caroline Lichtenstein & Teresa Kachocki

The concept for a toy-making project for the underprivileged children was actually brought about 2 years ago. Jim Ganzer, woodshop teacher for N.P.H.S., mentioned the idea to his students and it was enthusiastically received.

The project from there was basically student run. Many students wrote letters to local lumber companies to obtain the materials needed. However, their excitement for the project was lessened by the companies who did not wish to contribute. So, they took matters into their own hands. Some students went to construction sites and scrounged the wood needed and others found what wood they could in the Conejo area.

In the next few weeks almost all of the woodshop classes were involved in the making of some 250 cars and trucks.

The completed toys were divided into three categories-Toys for Tots which is run by the USMC, Dr. George Fishbeck's Kids, and the Ventura County Child Abuse and Neglect Council. The toys were sent to these three places with the hope that they would bring some joy into the lives of some unhappy children.

Teens Speak Out

by Teresa Kachocki & Caroline Lichtenstein

Enthusiasm was high in the APS classes of Mr. Mel Dick. During the Fall Semester many of his seniors undertook the challenge of creating a Teen Center, a place where people of one age group could go and call "their own".

It all started with a guest speaker named Madge Shaefer-mayor of Thousand Oaks. She was asked why there was no place around where teens could go when they needed information concerning teens. Mrs. Shaefer told them simply that if they wished a place of their own, to go out and find one-or better yet, make one.

The suggestion was readily accepted and the more the classes discussed the job, the more enthused they became. Committees were formed, petitions sent around and teens spoke to their friends about the new idea. The excitement grew.

The big break for the seniors came when their idea was accepted by the City Council. A party was held by the classes to celebrate.

Soon after that, Newbury Park set out to tell the other schools in the Conejo Valley about the proposal. Westlake High and Thousand Oaks were enthusiastic about the center. With this backing, Newbury Park felt they could face the community in force.

Newbury Park High School and the Conejo Valley can be proud of what they accomplished.

Junior Great Books

by Teresa Kachocki and Julie Bragg

A newly developed course for honors' students was Junior Great Books. The course was designed to help accelerated students gain a greater knowledge of literature.

The class was comprised of eight seniors. They met once a week, mostly on Wednesday evenings, at different houses in Newbury Park. El Ellis, one of the senior English teachers on campus, and Pat Stuart, a local junior high school teacher, coordinated and moderated the class.

Members of the Junior Great Books program read classic works by authors such as Shakespeare, Voltaire, and Plato. At each meeting they analyzed what they had read the previous week. Many animated and thoughtful discussions took place Wednesday nights.

Doing their job on campus are Marc Ben, Robbie Schrader, Helen Crow, Josey Smith, Ann Cotroneo, and Jean Gilbert.

Yellow Jackets

by Caroline Lichtenstein and Teresa Kachocki

School patrollers — they are nothing new to the Newbury Park campus. Last year, California Lutheran College students were around to maintain proper campus behavior. This year however, pupils of Newbury Park High School had a different type of patrol. These patrollers had the same duty — to watch over the campus, but they had a new name: Campus Supervision Aides.

The Campus Supervision Aides' main job was to keep students on campus and in class. The six aides walked around the campus during school hours checking gates, asking for passes, and generally keeping watch.

The aides' schedule was such that sometimes there was only one aide on patrol. However at lunch, the time when many students wish to leave, all aides were on duty.

"From what I have heard from teachers, there has been a significant change in student attitude toward the aides this year because they are adults," said Mrs. Thomas, attendance officer and the person in charge of the Campus Aides. "Students are stopping to think about the consequences of going off-campus and being caught," remarked Mrs. Thomas.

Showing A Skill

by Teresa Kachocki & Caroline Lichtenstein

The shop classes were very busy throughout the year with many projects. The students were involved with all the aspects of forming and building. From designing, to taking the finished project home, the students put in much effort and many hours.

Many students felt they could show their abilities by what they created and how they attained their final achievements. The grade they received on a project was worth little, compared to the pride each felt in a finished piece.

1. Crafting in clay is Cindy Bloomfield. 2. A work of art! 3. Burl wood veneer requires a special touch as Doug Fletcher shows. 4. Putting on the finishing touches is Scott Clint. 5. A student sands a project. 6. A craftsman works on wood. 7. Working on a new project is Alecia Kahmann.

1. The new names and numbers don't exactly fit.
2. This one sign, alone, makes life at Newbury Park High School a bit confusing.

Confusing Numerals

by Teresa Kachocki & Caroline Lichtenstein

A new numbering system for the buildings of N.P.H.S. was put into use just before the second semester. The school board decided that the former numbering system was confusing to both old and new students alike. As it was, many students did not have any idea as to where specific rooms were, other than those for their own classes. Substitutes found it hard to locate the room in which they were to teach.

A new system was devised in which each building was assigned a letter from A through E. Buildings which had a specific use, such as the music building, were given a specific coding.

In the process of putting on the new numbers, it was found that the plaques did not cover the old names and numbers properly. This situation confused the students even more!

Career Center: Work On It

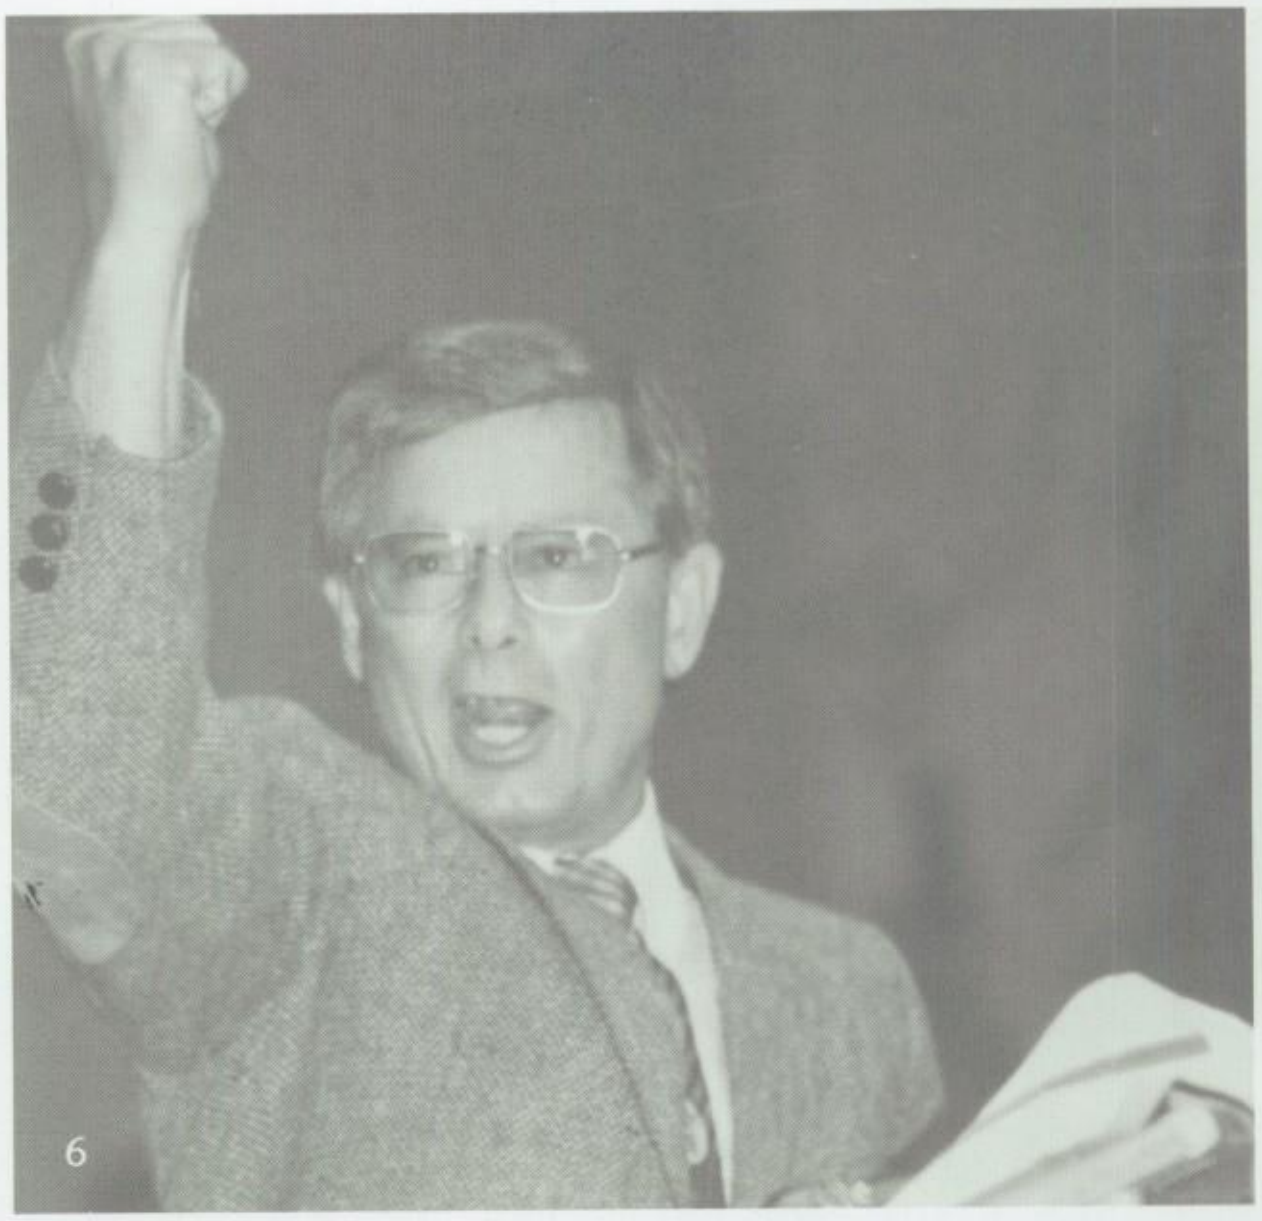
by Caroline Lichtenstein & Teresa Kachocki

The Career Center was a place where you could go to get help and start a new career. Whether a person was a college bound student or a kid who wanted to know how to get a job, the Career Center was there to help.

Run by Audrey Rich and Pat Jellander, the center assisted those who wished information concerning jobs or careers. Every aspect of career guidance was readily available to students. From guest speakers, to how to fill out college applications, the Career Center, with its facilities and staff, was there to help.

Next year NPHS will be the first school in the Conejo Valley to have a computer available for career guidance. An expectation for this system is the ability to get students geared towards a lifetime career earlier. By the end of the 1983 school year, the center hopes to have run the computer cards of all freshmen and sophomores through the computer.

Without the support of students and staff at NPHS, the Career Center would cease to function. Now, with better facilities and an incoming computer, the center hopes to help more students than ever.



by Teresa Kachocki & Caroline Lichtenstein

In December of 1981, Mr. James DeFrates, long time principal of Newbury Park High School, left for his new job in the Conejo Valley School District Office. For some time he had been thinking about what he could do after being school principal and when this new opportunity arose, he decided to take it.

The school was sad to see him go. ASG (Associated Student Government) planned a big send-off for him. An assembly was held so all could watch Jim DeFrates' "graduation" from Newbury Park High School. Congratulations, special gifts, and good wishes were sent with him to his new job.

DeFrates' new job held many and varied responsibilities. Working from the District Office, he was responsible for all certified personnel, that is, all teachers, counselors, and administrators. He was in charge of recruiting, selecting, checking out credentials, hiring, observation and evaluation, and transfers. DeFrates' office was also responsible for the district's substitute teachers.

James DeFrates said he was enjoying his new job immensely. "It's exactly what I thought it would be," he commented. "I'm enjoying it very much."

What Is Success?

To laugh often and to love much;
To win the respect of intelligent persons and the affection of children;
To earn the approbation of honest critics and endure the betrayal of false friends;
To appreciate beauty;
To find the best in others;
To give one's self;
To leave the world a bit better,
Whether by a healthy child,
A garden patch,
Or a redeemed social condition;
To have played and laughed with enthusiasm,
And sung with exultation;

Administration, teachers, secretaries, cafeteria staff, and custodians — all help to create what NPHS is. By working as a team, they not only provide a good academic atmosphere, but a personal and social one as well. When a student makes something of himself, from what he has learned at the school, this team is to be congratulated.

ELDERS

On December 14, 1981, James Fraysier was officially appointed principal of NPHS. He was chosen over 35 other applicants. The week before the winter vacation Newbury Park had the pleasure of welcoming this new member to its administrative staff.

Mr. Fraysier has had various previous experience in education. He was assistant principal at Ventura High School from 1976 to 1981. Prior to his position at Ventura High School, he taught foreign language and social studies at Santa Paula Union High School for thirteen years. During the 1973-74 school year, he was appointed "Teacher of the Year" by that school's principal.

Jim Fraysier has attended college for many years. He received a teaching credential in social sciences in 1960 and a master's degree in American history in 1969 from Pepperdine University. Mr. Fraysier earned his administrative credential from California State University at Northridge. Currently he is enrolled in a doctoral program at U.S.C.

A family man, Mr. Fraysier has a wife and three daughters, one of whom he gave in marriage earlier this year. When asked what he liked about working at NPHS, Newbury Park's new principal responded (that it is) "the students, faculty, and staff who transform buildings and space into an exciting, dynamic center for learning."

Oh, So Many Memories!

by Laura Chowning

Entering high school is supposed to be a time filled with laughter, good times, heartaches, and lots of work. High school times are filled with experiences and remembrances of the good and bad times. Students live through those four long years, having both good and bad experiences. They are young, inexperienced, and easily influenced by their peers, friends, and teachers; yes, even by their parents. Teachers play a big part of students' memories. When N.P.H.S. teachers were asked, they showed they still have deep memories about their own high school times. The answers were thoughtful and direct. Although the remarks varied in context, they were very much alike in thought.

Robert Miller remembered all of his classes, teachers, & friends. Counselor Sylvia Michaels wrote, "... the friendships and one particular teacher who greatly influenced my life by having confidence in my abilities." "Basketball, graduation, and all of my girl friends," recalled Brad Nelson. Metal and welding teacher Lin Thomas remembered, "the building of my hot rods, sports, and messing around with my friends." Ken Barone remembered, "the

by Laura Chowning

Advice is easily given, but not as easily received. It is easier to give than it is to receive. It's hard to take someone's opinions, put-downs, and ideas. Advice should be something that a person is unafraid to face, because it could indeed be for the good of everyone involved. When asked about advice concerning life, N.P.H.S. teachers had ideas to offer.

Special Ed. teacher George James expressed himself beautifully. "Love yourself first before trying to solve it with others; spend time and energy developing your resources and putting it together before you start spreading out, making commitments." "Use your time to the fullest and choose friends with goals in life," advised Darlene Feller. "Get a good education and be happy in your work," stated secretary Gretchen Flagg. Counselor Darlene Dahlen said, "Make each day better than the day before, by working harder and caring more." Art teacher Kristi Collel said, "I have always lived by two mottos: 'give to the world the best you have and the best will come back to you.' and 'it is better to try and not succeed than never try at all.' These words have guided me in many personal achievements and much personal satisfaction." English teacher Warren Firth said, "Be honest with yourself and with others."

Teenagers: Then & Now

by Laura Chowning

There are many things that have become characteristic of today's teenagers. Their dress, their attitudes, their feelings are all quite different from those in the past. Or, are they? NPHS teachers were asked if teenagers have changed since they were young; their answers varied. Secretary Verie Urpin stated, "They have matured more rapidly." Jim Gloyd commented, "Teenagers are fighting many of the same battles of acceptance, peer pressures, parental pressures, and authority conflicts. Society's standards have changed much: heightening, I believe, an awareness of conflict." Warren Firth wrote, "Essentially no, but yes in some ways. Adult-created problems have made teenagers' problems more serious." Counselor Sylvia Michael said, "No, we also experienced the same feelings although the circumstances and the times were different." Gretchen Flagg said, "Yes, they are more worldly. They know more about what is going on in the world." Counselor Darlene Dahlen expressed, "They are much more sensitive and caring about each other and the world in general. I was a teen during 'Happy Days'.-' Auda Ables commented, "In general, there seems to be more group activity and less respect for authority (teachers) than I remember. Teens seem to know more. The difference may be that I was from a smaller, and more rural school."

Behind The Scenes

It takes more than teachers, administrators, and clerical staff to run a school. It also takes the dedicated people like the N.P. custodial and cafeteria staffs who work behind the scenes providing services that help the school run smoothly.

This year both staffs had major changes in their routines. The cafeteria staff presented a new menu plan. Everything was served ala carte, with the exception of the day's special. However, this changed by popular demand later on in the year. The students seemed to like the combinations better.

The custodians also had a major turn-about this year. The plant supervisor Rudy Torres accepted a new job with the Simi Valley district. With numerous other personnel changes, the number of custodians varied each week. This made day to day maintenance very difficult. During the winter vacation, the staff also had the job of putting up new room numbers.

PARK

Dedicated athletes and those less inclined to sports had the best of all possible worlds at NPHS. The variety of sports offered, the resourcefulness of boosters, the enthusiasm of the crowds all contributed to an excellent athletic program. In reaching for glory, that all important win, athletes and spectators benefited from the expertise of an outstanding professional staff of coaches. These coaches always stressed the potential for achieving the important goal, a "personal best".

The Panthers, As Always, Number One

"This year's team was the best offensive team in the school's history," said Coach Ken Cook concerning the 1981 Marmonte League Champs. "We broke almost all passing records this year."

It was the first Marmonte Championship since 1971. The Varsity Panthers had the second highest scoring average (21.6 points per game) in the Coastal Conf. The highlights of the season were the 21-7 win over Agoura, the 42-13 win over Westlake, and the 42-13 victory over Thousand Oaks. The Team Awards went to Lance Gomez, who was Captain & the team's Most Valuable Lineman; Kerry Calvi, Most Inspirational; Greg Tipton, Most Valuable Back; and Brad Cole, who was the Most Valuable Player plus Offensive Player of the Year. Last year three special awards were created to honor the players who go beyond what is expected of them. Doug Dagan received the Terry Patterson "Big Hitter" Award. Kerry Calvi & Doug Smith each received the Dave Wise Comeback Player Award. The Panther Award, which is given by the coaches to honor a player who displays qualities of hard work and team spirit, went to Gary Stotko.

J.V.: Moving Up

by Leighsa Lightfoot

The 1981 Junior Varsity Panthers started off strong, winning their first six games. The high points of the season were the 30-0 win over Agoura, the 28-15 win against Thousand Oaks, and the 14-0 win over Westlake. Being fired up and ready, really paid off. The team won four shut-outs this season, Agoura, Santa Barbara, Westlake, and Simi Valley.

The most valuable players on the team were Scott Beeman, defense; Scott Zander, offense; and Bruce Kennedy was chosen as Panther of the Year. The Most Improved Player was Darren Brooks.

Coach Hansen commented, "We played beyond our expectations — that is, the team was much better than we first expected it would be. There should be a lot of starting spots on next year's varsity team for them to fill if they work as hard as they did this year."

The dedication of Coaches Kevin Hansen & Bob Hendricks kept the team's spirit going strong all season.

There was fine line play out of Mike Baer and Chris Yadach. Coach Fabricus was pleased with quarterback Mike Rogers as well as the defensive play of linebackers Steve Meyer and Bob Siegel. Defensive backs Dave Mitchell and Richard Tucker also had a good year.

Playing With Pride

The 1981-82 season was full of changes for the Varsity basketball squad.

Dennis McKeown, who coached last year's J.V. team, replaced Ken Barone as the Varsity coach.

Returning from a one year absence, Rob Minich gave the team a boost with his fine playing abilities and previous two-year playing experience.

It was a rebuilding year for the Panthers, who lost the seniors from last year's successful team. Fortunately, they regained the talents of last year team members Chris Bales and Jimmy Harrick.

Larry Wiksell was the team member with the most natural playing ability, according to Coach McKeown.

The mighty Panthers didn't go without some injuries, though. Jim Harrick, who at one time sprained his ankle, was also out with a dislocated shoulder for a major part of the season. Chris Bales also suffered from a sprained ankle at the beginning of the season. These and many other injuries seemed to hold the Panthers back.

Much to the delight of the enthusiastic crowds, the team did bounce back and ended the season as winners, defeating both Westlake and Channel Islands.

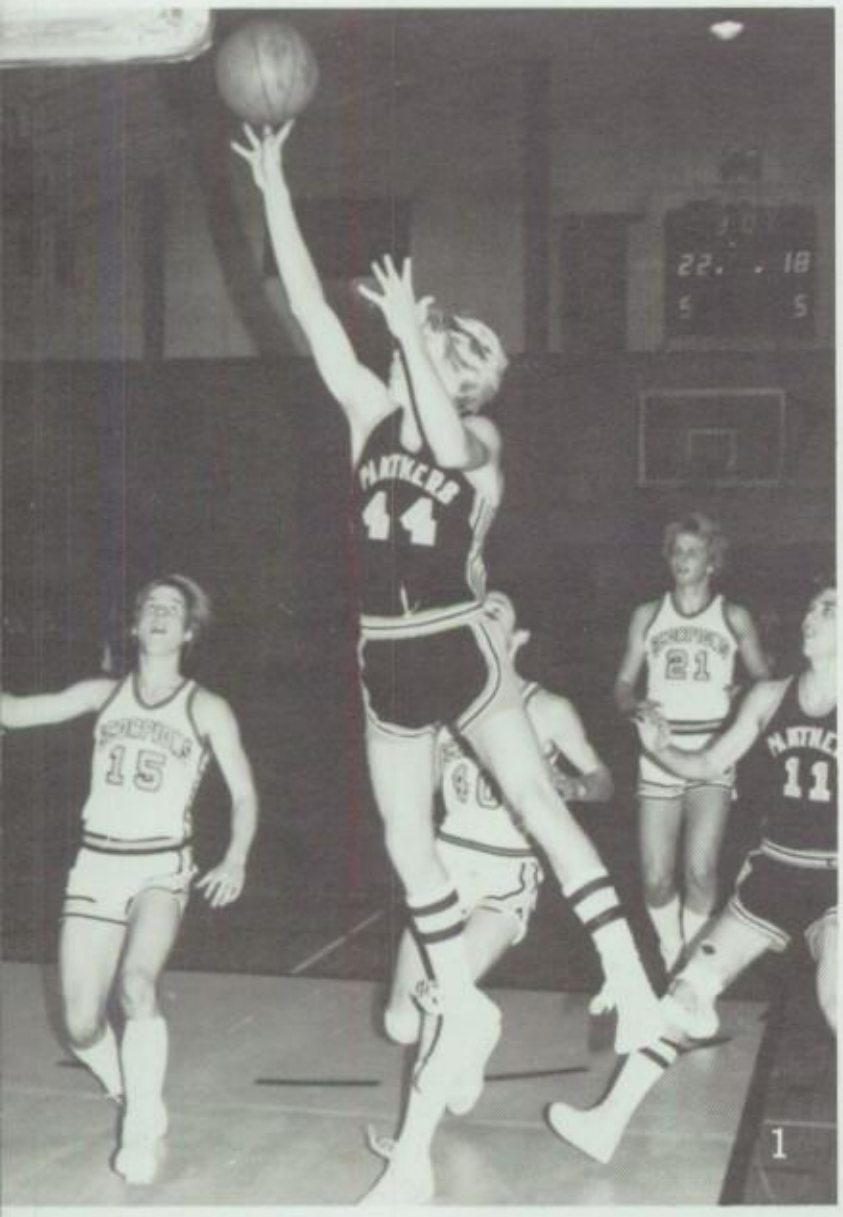
Capable Of Doing The Job



This year's J.V. team consisted of a group of good, strong players. The guys were skilled in different areas of the game as well as having some mutual abilities. They really worked as a team and it paid off.

The Junior Varsity defeated Newbury Park's cross-town rival, Thousand Oaks, during the league season. The team also beat both Simi and Camarillo twice, as well as beating their previous tough contender Channel Islands in the last game of the season.

Roy Gilmore, the new J.V. coach this year, did a fine job. He also gained respect from the spectators as well as the players by the way he handled the team. Coach Gilmore has well prepared the athletes to play on the Varsity next year. It is obvious that they are quite capable of doing that job.

The Frosh-Soph team had many good individual players, each specializing in his own area. Dean Ohlrich, for example, made the most points, while Todd Hammond was outstanding in his assists. Marc Chowning was known for his many rebounds as well as his dunking ability.

History and civics teacher Paul Coffman made an adjustment this year extending his teaching abilities to coaching for the first time. He seemed to really enjoy the new experience.

The main highlight in the Frosh-Soph team's season was their win against Channel Islands. It was the proudest moment in the year for them.

All things consisdered, being on the team was a good learning experience. It was an opportunity to perfect each member's skills for the time when they will represent the school in later years as members of the J.V. and Varsity teams.

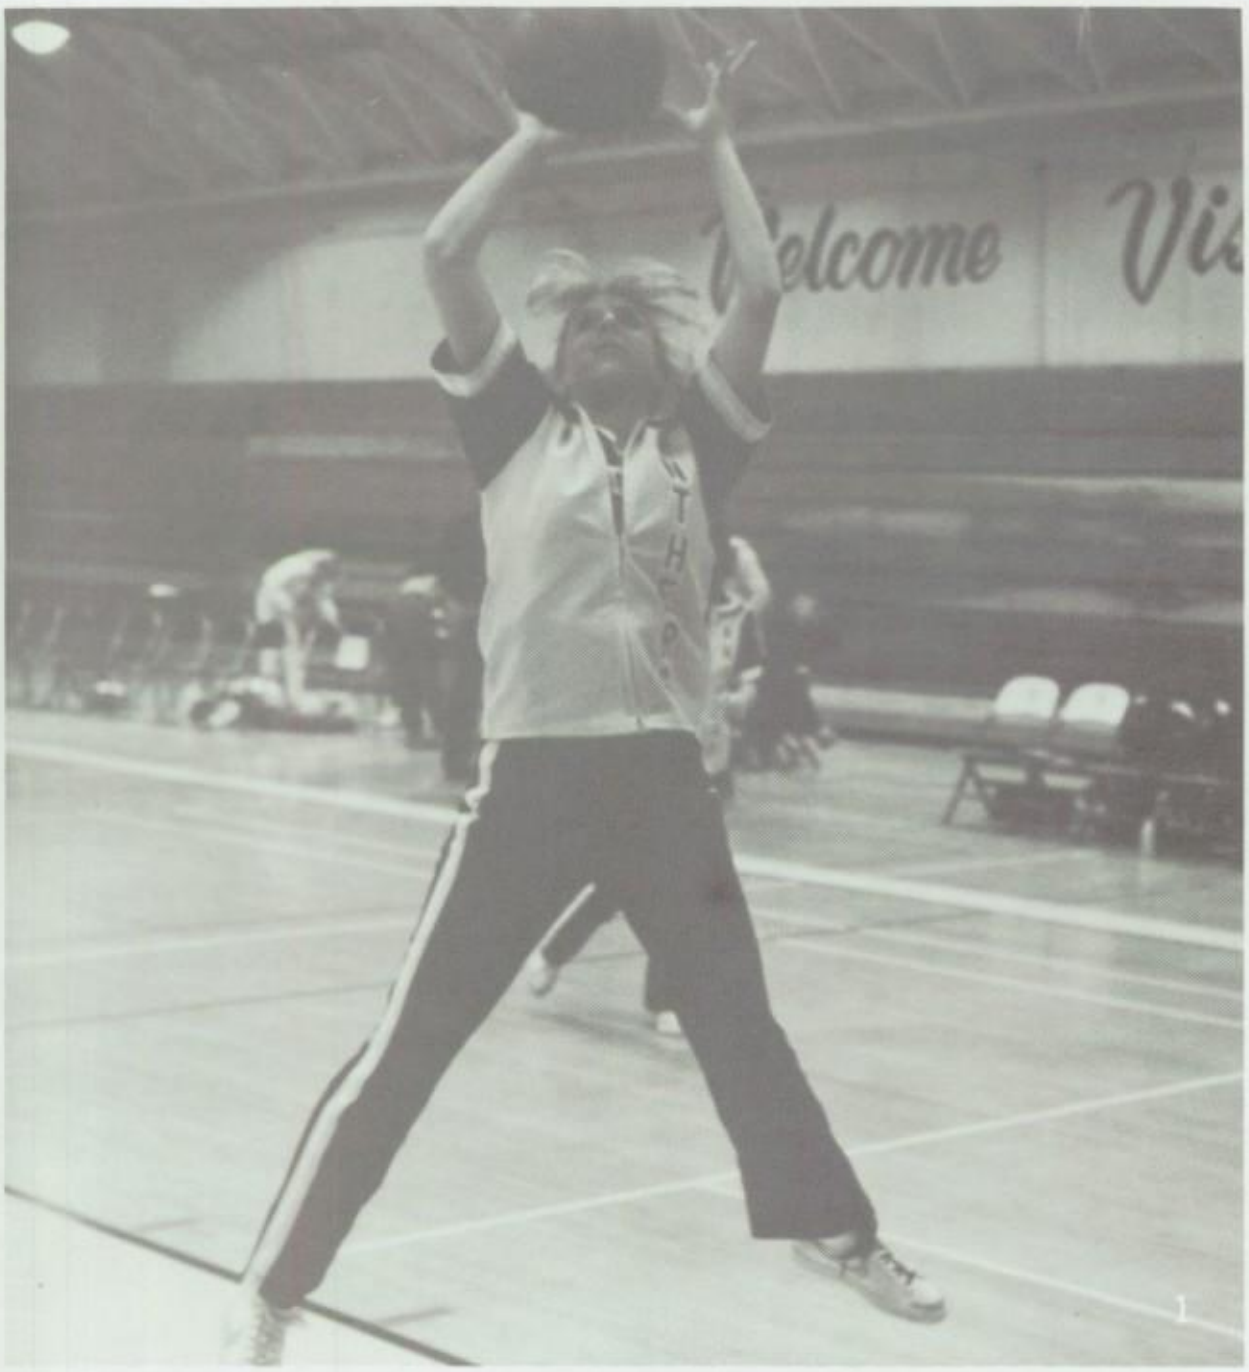
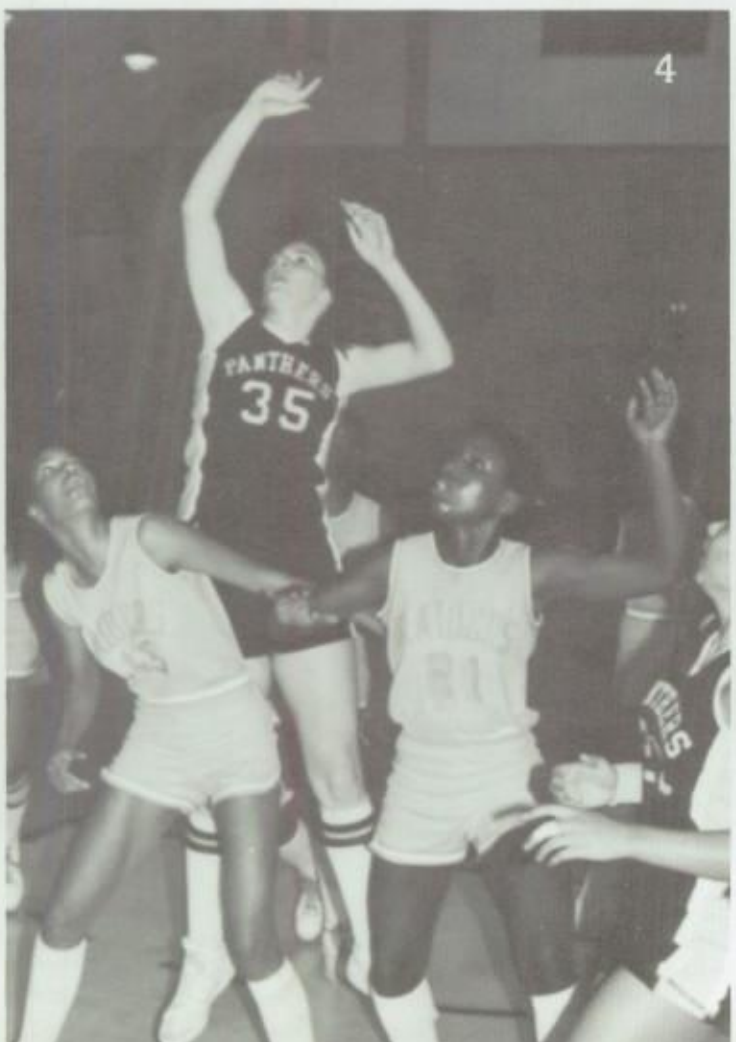
Hoops For Skirtless Ladies



Another victory, for both J.V. and Varsity girls' teams, ended another exciting season for them. The year started out very optimistically with a win for both teams over the Agoura Chargers. Pre-season stats looked good with 9-2 for Varsity and 7-1 for J.V. Although the league record didn't look as good (6-6 Varsity, 4-8 J.V.) the Panthers didn't give up. With the support of Coach Nori Parvin and co-captains Jennie Stachura and Andrea Wagner, the Varsity had the thrill of winning the Christmas Tournament (Merry Christmas Panthers!)

There was great dedication and energy put into our girls' basketball teams. There will have to be an extensive search for young women with these same qualities because all but three of the Varsity team are graduating. This will put a severe drain on Coach Diane Wilson's great J.V. team causing her to find new talent.



Pressure Builds In Backcourt

1. At the tip-off, both players strive to lengthen their reach.
2. Junior Varsity Basketball Roster: Coach Diane Wilson, Jill Prioreschi, Chrissie Hansen, Karen Westphal, Teri Bohannon, Sheila Riordan, Katey Potts, Angie Taylor, Eileen McCarthy, Ginger Blanco, Teri Rockhold, Jennifer Tallungan, Heather Riley, and Julie Blackwell.
3. Attempting to make a basket, a Panther aims past a Raider.
4. The stress shows near the end of a long game.
5. Double-guarded, but still not giving up!
6. Aiming her free throw, Ginger Blanco hopes to "sink it".
7. Anticipation strikes players' faces as Heather Riley makes a shot.
8. Practice seems to pay off as Jennifer Tallungan tries for two points.

It was a great year! The Frosh and Soph teams had some of the best talent N.P.H.S. has ever had on that level. Most competition was in exhibition matches and tournaments. The Sophs took 2nd in the Thousand Oaks Tournament and 5th in the Simi Invitational. The Frosh took 5th and 2nd in their tournaments.

Junior Varsity won Marmonte League for the seventh year in a row with an 11-1 record. They were champions of the Ventura Invitational; 1st in League Finals, 3rd in the Dos Pueblos Invitational, and 2nd in San Marcos' 8-Way.

Varsity won the entire League Finals. League Champions were Grant Gailius and Tim Atkinson. Runnersup were Craig Westphal, John Zupon, Dave Passovoy, Dan Saavedra, Lance Gomez, Mark Grant, and Dan Novak. Grant Gailius was 1st in the C.I.F. section. He was a C.I.F. finalist.

Pitching, Hitting Team Up

Leading off the season with an 8-0 record, the Varsity Team members were the Righetti Tournament champions. When interviewed, Coach Dick Intlekofer offered his perception of the team. "We're off to a good start, with all thirteen players contributing as a tea. Our hitting, defense, and pitching have all been outstanding. Our returning all-Marmonte League players from last year, Jill Prioreschi, Sandy Ortgies, Lori Nilsen, and Andrea Wagner are leading the way, in addition to the rest of the Panther varsity. The league should be very strong, but our goal is to win the league championship and go far in the CIF play-offs."

Taking The Plunge

The boys' swim teams, coached by Mr. Chris Sawyer, started out the 1982 season by winning their meet against Agoura. It wasn't something that was unexpected, because, "We haven't lost to Agoura in ten years," said Coach Sawyer.

It looked like the long hours of practice were paying off. The swim team was in the pool every weekday at seven o'clock in the morning or earlier, and practice was also held after school. Much pain was felt during those three hours for the reason that, "Without pain there is no gain," according to Coach Sawyer.

Ms. Daniels was not a regular staff member at N.P., but she devoted many hours of her time to the Panther girls.

Swim practices were held twice a day; the early practice was at 6:30 in the morning, with the afternoon practice beginning at 1:15. The swim team ladies had the dedication that makes superstars out of unsung heroines.

Water Polo Has Its Ups & Downs

by Nicky Menna and Leslee Russell

The Varsity water polo team was a step shy of what last year's team had been because of its lack of experience. The team had lost all players from previous years. It was a big transition as former Junior Varsity and Soph-Frosh players moved up to Varsity. Even with this disadvantage, Newbury Park still took a third place in the Marmonte League. Bill Friel commented, "We had a fun season although we learned the hard way."

The Junior Varsity team took the ranking a place higher, taking second in league. This J.V. team consisted of freshmen and sophomores, with only one junior. Even with this youth in the Junior Varsity team, they were very successful.

The Varsity Soccer team did not do as well as they would have liked. They came in fourth in the Marmonte League. Next year we hope to see N.P. take first place, but for now the Varsity Soccer players have to work on defense. Soccer is one of the fastest growing sports in America today; this guarantees continued interest and participation in the sport here at N.P.H.S.

Champs For 5 Straight Years

By Debbie Allen

League Champs — all the way

This year was the fifth straight year that the girls' Varsity cross country team won the league championship. This victory was due largely to the expert coaching techniques of Coach Mike Stewart, and the talented team he had to work with. The girls' Varsity team was led by Senior Denise Ball. Denise has held three straight Ventura County titles, and won three straight league finals. She was 6th in the western U.S.A., 15th in the Nationals, and 2nd in C.I.F. finals. Other girls who lettered were Gina Jones, Jennie Stachura, Teri Rockhold, Pam Jones, Donna Toth, Debbie Ball, and Rosalie Roberts.

Newbury Park High School was quite impressed by the girls' Varsity team record this year. The girls' Varsity took 5th in C.I.F. finals and 1st in league finals. The team posted a 9-1 record for the entire season. Their league record was 6-0.

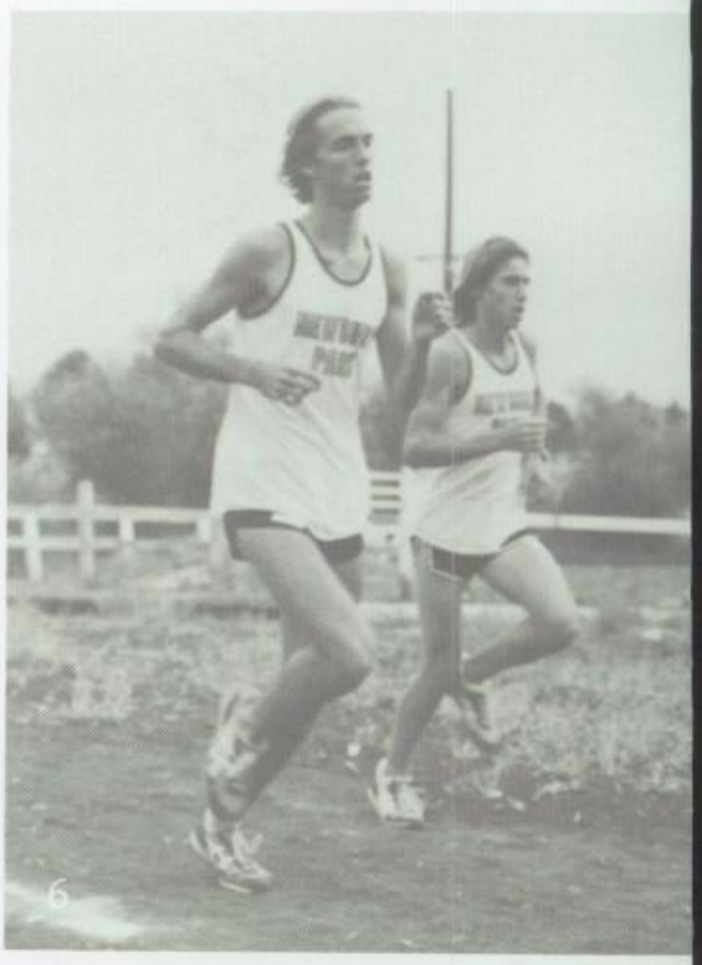
All The Way To League Champs

by Debbie Allen

League Champs — as well. Not only did the girls make the league championships, but also the boys did. Newbury Park was the only school to have both boys' and girls' league championships the same year. This was an encore performance because the school also had achieved this distinction in 1977.

The boys' Varsity letter winners were Tom Chase, John DeVere, Mike Stueve, Eric Jones, Chris Rice, Tom Barton, Mike Ward, and Dan DeLany. The team held 8th place in the C.I.F. finals and 1st place in the league finals. Their seasonal record was 10-1; their league record was 5-1. This was the team that also won the Royal, Ventura, and Buena Park Invitationals. "Part of the team's success was due to their hard work during the summer training months, along with a determined outlook on the season," stated Coach Stewart.



1. Trying for #1.
2. After a long competition at C.L.C., the remaining energy is for fun.
3. Chris Rice leads the way.
4. Eric Jones heads for the finish line.
5. Newbury Park giving their all.
6. Pacing each other, two runners near their goal.

Taking It On The Run

by Ginny Montenegro

The Varsity track team worked hard this year to achieve high goals for themselves and for the school. Charlie's Angels Stroke Out For '81

by Leslee Russell and Nicky Menna

This year's tennis team was in a year of rebuilding. The team was made up mostly of freshmen and sophomores, with only three juniors and one senior on the squad. The team was very young and inexperienced. Next year's team promises to be a league contender.

As this was Coach Chuck Kaelber's first year as tennis coach, he knew he had his work cut out for himself. This was further complicated by the fact that there were only two returning varsity players.

Even though the team finished with a 2-11 record, they showed good sportsmanship and team dedication.

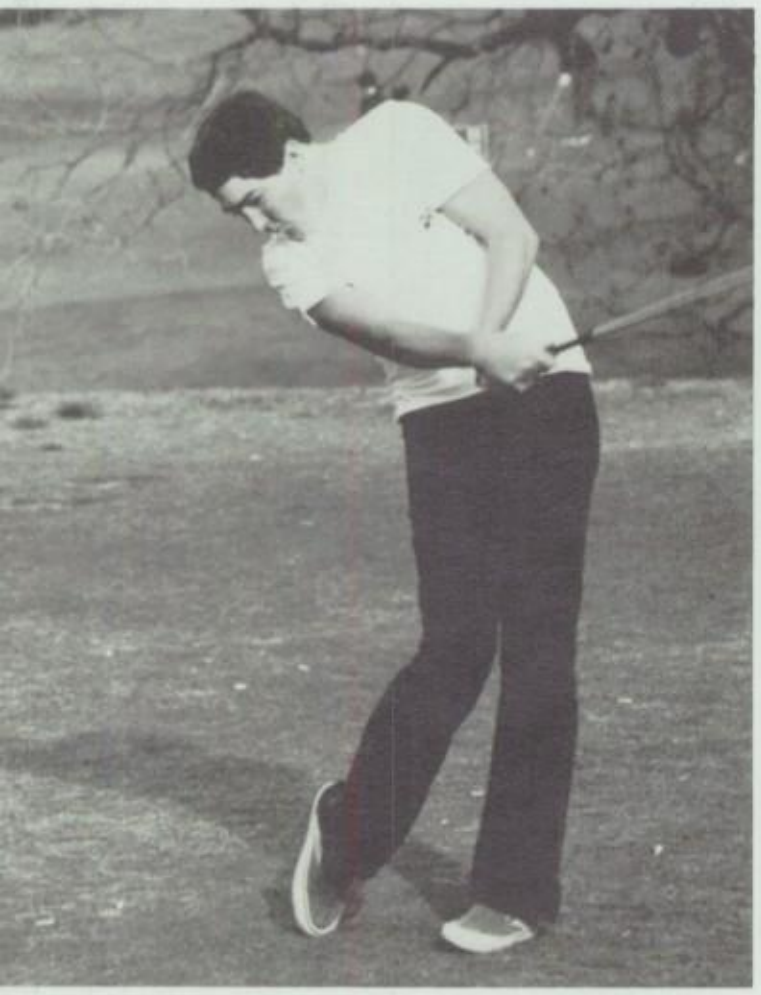
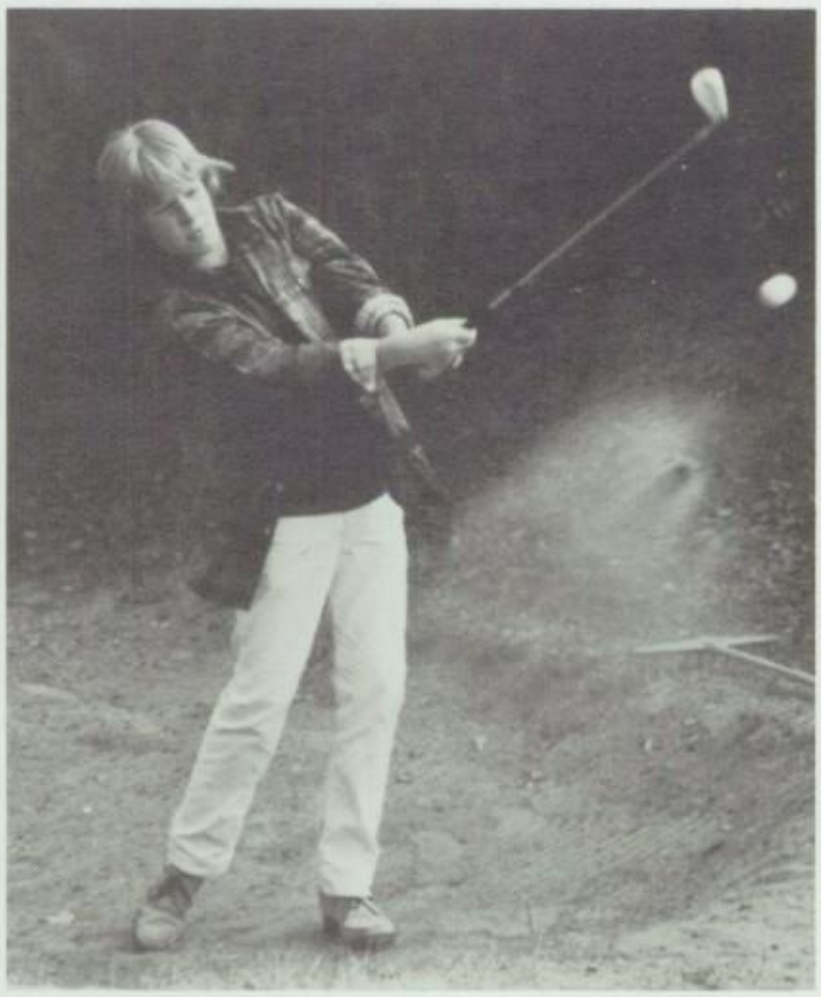
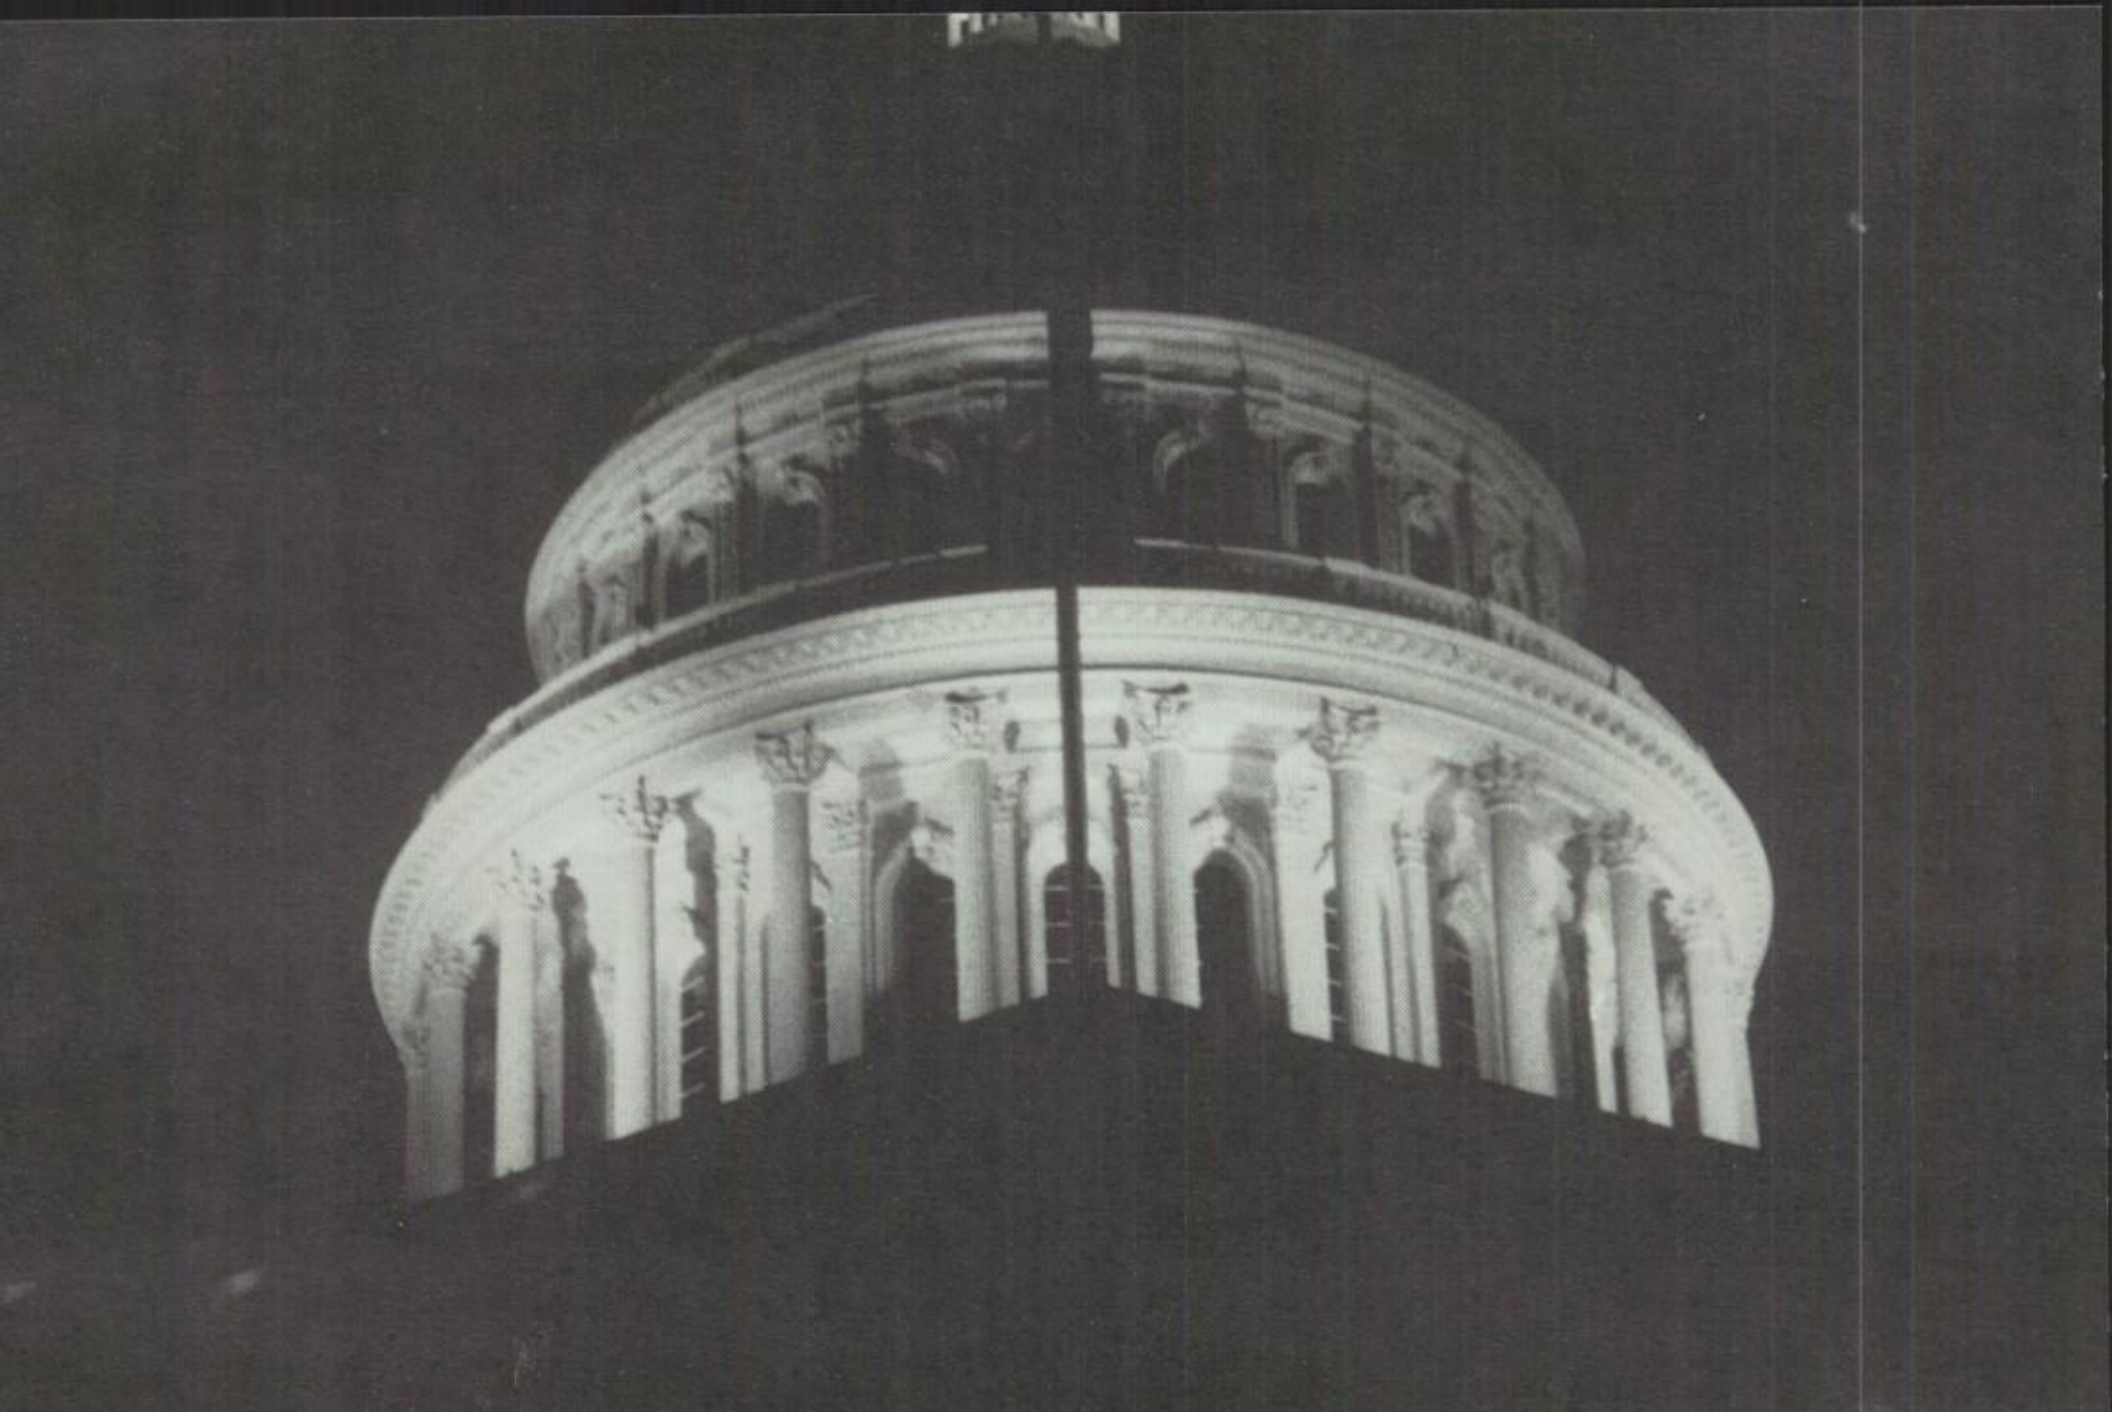
Swinging Panthers







Looking back at '82, we realized it was a dramatic, frightening, exhilarating, and sometimes memorable year. There were big stories and major issues, individual triumphs and tragedies, and best of all, a few memorable, lighter and joyful moments. We hope you will remember 1982 as a year of good friends and good times. Here's to 1982!

A few fads and knicknacks made the year "82" fun and exciting. Afterschool sports were still a favorite activity but more than ever, a lot of people rushed home to watch their favorite soap operas. "General Hospital" was the ratings' champion.

NPHS reflected the general public's lack of decision with reference to a favorite car or truck, but getting that first car or truck still ranked as a high priority.

Rock-n-Roll was on top but Punk, New Wave, and mellow rock were still popular on the local scene. A few groups in the top 10 were Journey, Black Sabbath, the Go Go's, Archers, Olivia Newton John, and Pat Benatar.

Headbands kept hair out of students' eyes but also took their share of fashion. From 99¢ bandannas up to fifty dollar gold and silver bands, they were an "in" thing.

Lather Over Soaps

1. From bandannas to gold metallic headbands, this is a fad enjoyed by both guys and girls.
2. Classy, metallic belts lend a stylish elegance to an everyday wardrobe.
3. Question: Who's the status companion of "82"? Answer: A cuddly little cat named Garfield.
4. Hearts, rainbows, and alligators add a special touch to shoe laces.
5. Favorite soap operas decorate cups, pins, mirrors, and many more knicknacks.
6. Leg warmers are worn on the outside of pants for a change of style.

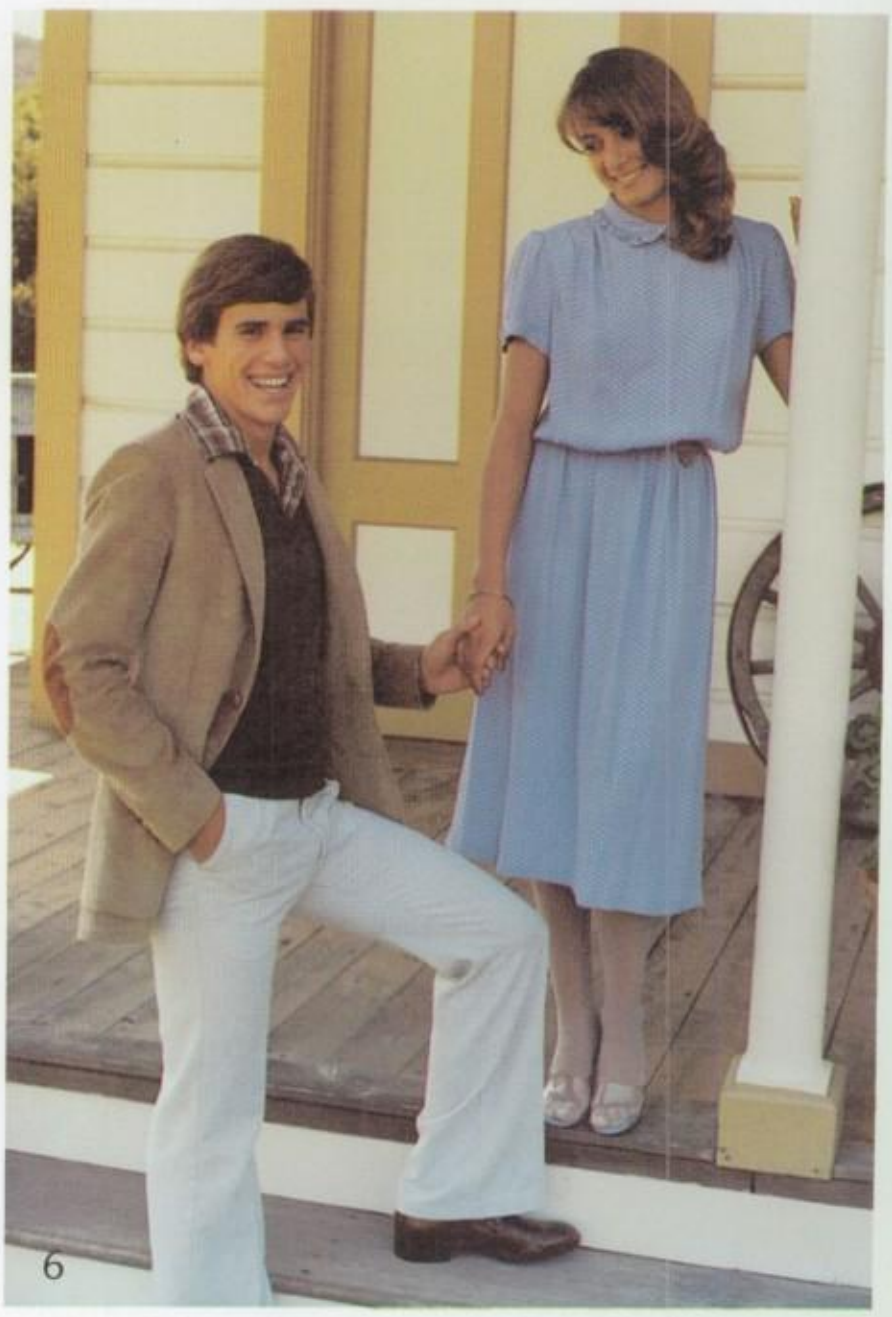
"A Touch Of Class" - '82

The fashion image for 1982 was quite different than most years. Instead of "fitting in", one tried awfully hard to be different. A change of styles was hitting our high school very rapidly.

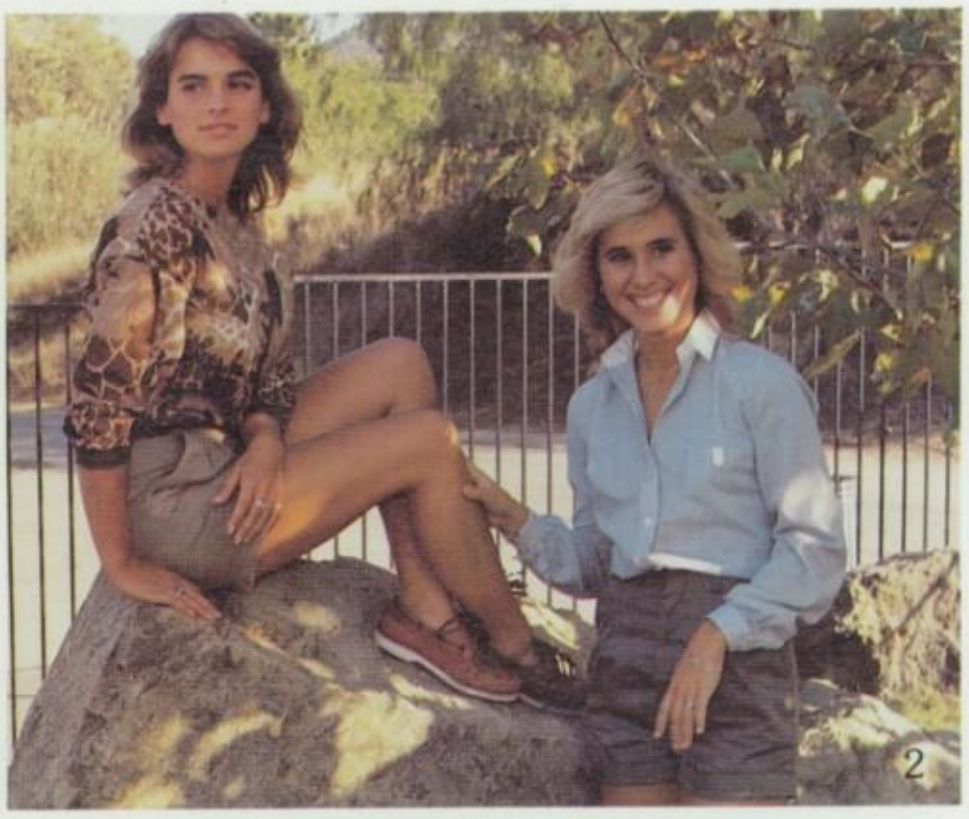
No longer were punkers looked at as being strange, nor was wearing sweats considered tacky. Sweats were thought of as attractive and often worn as everyday outfits. Styles ranged from mini skirts in the summer to wool knit sweaters in the winter. Whatever was worn was O.K.

Cowboy boots were worn by the gals just as much as the guys. Designer jeans were often tucked into the boots and a "members only" jacket was added to make a classy look.

Walking shorts, Lacoste shirts, and top sider shoes were also part of '82's fashion. But whatever the fashion, it's important to remember that beauty is also on the inside of a person.



1. Dannelle Jelly and Darla Vaccaro show off the New Wave styles. Dannelle's wearing a three piece knicker outfit while Darla dresses in a tiger blouse & mini.
2. Dressed in walking shorts and comfortable blouses, Heather Hayes and Devon Cloutier show us a summer-fall fashion.
3. Wearing their matching Lacoste shirts, Wynn Sourial and Randy Freiberg give each other a reassuring smile.
4. Happy in her hiding place, Dannelle Jelly wears a very attractive western outfit.



5. Posing at the Stage Coach Inn, Susan Feagley & Nadine Civitano remind us of the country girl look.

6. While Jennie Stachura models a classy all-occasions dress, Jimmy Harrick wears the classic sports outfit: plaid shirt, sweater, and corduroy blazer.

7. Jimmy Harrick, Devon Cloutier, and Scott Shoemaker stop for a moment to show us their sweat outfits.
8. Dannelle Jelly & Darla Vaccaro peak at us with their cat eyes.

Friends Add The Fun

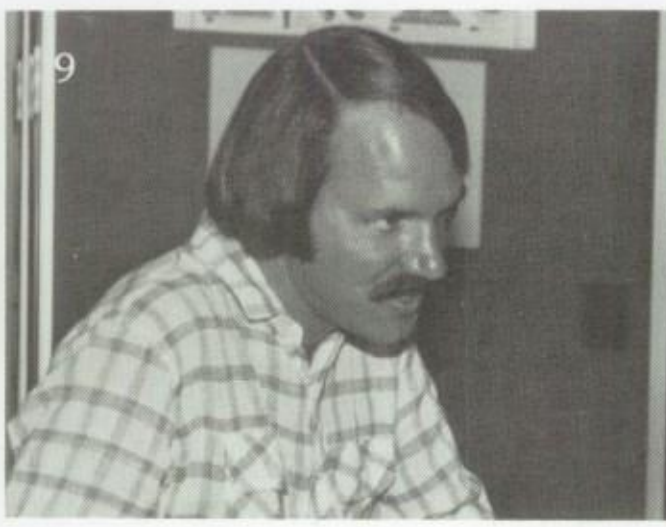
Life Is More Than Books

by Christie Flynn

High school is supposed to be a time of learning for everyone. It is an intensive period for mathematic and literary skills. It's a time to think ahead toward the future and prepare for it. It's supposed to be serious!

But, how can I be serious when I remember the good times spent with you, my friends? You gave me shoulders to cry on when I was lonely. You laughed at all my crazy jokes. No matter what happens, we'll always be friends.

We went to pizza nights, dances, and all the rallies, not caring that we became more hoarse with every cheer. When I had a problem, you were always there to listen and you always knew the answers even when I didn't understand the questions. Through all the make-ups and break-ups, you were there, always standing by me. Even though my mistakes were many, you still liked me. We've come a long way together, you and me, and I just want to thank you, thank you for bein' a friend.



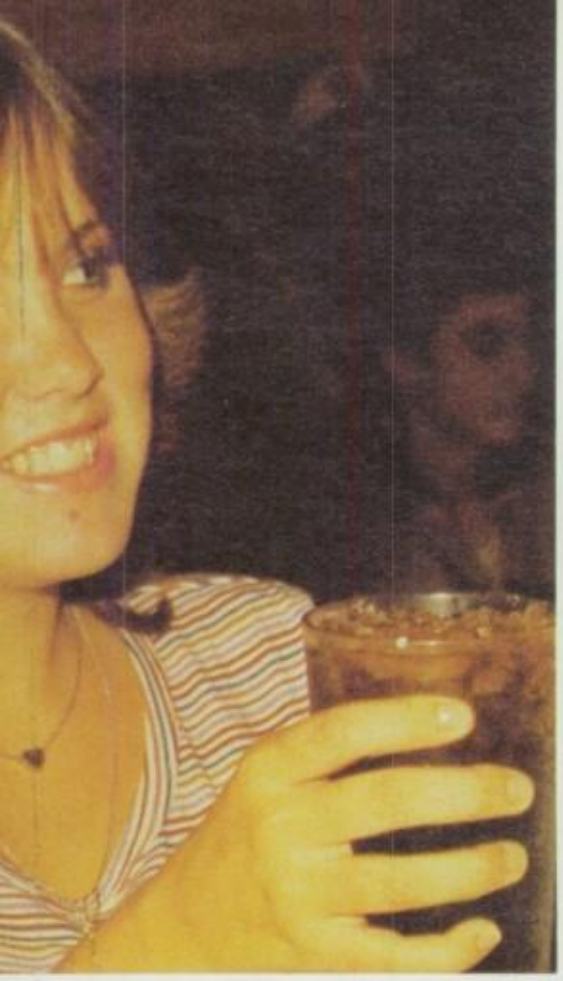
1. "The f-stop and shutter speed settings control the exposure," explains Drew Eagar to a confused Leda Rassuli.
2. The band plays "On Broadway" under Sheila Cothern's concentrated direction.
3. A relaxed atmosphere, in a quiet area at lunchtime, is a good place to talk out problems with friends.
4. Contemplating a touchy subject, Jocelyn Morelli and Curt Krupp discuss the situation.
5. During the excitement of the Homecoming Game, newly elected Homecoming Queen Kristina Pippo receives a hug from Teresa Jendian.
6. A slice of pepperoni pizza is the best way to celebrate, or so Rory Taylor tries to convince Wendy Barnes.
7. The topic of conversation drifts from hot cars to rock-and-roll when Bob Klobüchar and Dave Lundberg talk on the quad at lunch.
8. The Panthers are a many mooded bunch, as reflected by Christine Maytorena and Holley Ohlrich.
9. Mr. Intlekofer gives a few helpful hints about compositions to a curious Scott Taylor.

Good Friends Good Times

The 1981-82 school year was a very successful one for the Panthers. From the first song played at the Welcome Dance, to dawn's early light after Grad Night, feelings of happiness and good times abounded.

. . . Whether games were won or lost, the outcome was met by the same feelings of unity not only by each team, but by the whole school. Every theatrical performance, each club and organization, were enthusiastically supported. This was a year of involvement, of unity, and especially of friendship. Here's to Good Friends was created to honor that friendship, and to capture the good times with close friends. Here's to Good Friends!

1. Friends Linda Friedman and Sonia Grigorian share laughs and their favorite snack.
2. Kim Young enjoys a successful Boosters' pizza night.



3. Black and gold to the core, Mark Stock and Teresa King get into the Homecoming spirit.
4. A Wild Bunch of Panthers, Dena Lochner, Connie Richardson, Laura Lightfoot, Jill Gienap, Leighsa Lightfoot, Kim Lightfoot, Kim Rice, & Kim Young, cheers as the football team makes a touchdown.
5. A helping hand from Art Bugg gives Ken Cook a closer look at those dirty dishes.
6. Smiles go for miles as the girls' varsity cross country team finishes another practice.
7. "We're number one, we're number one," chorus Desiree Sutton, Judy Fick, Maryanne Bohmann, Debby Miller, Leslee Russell, Jamie Sweeney, and Lana Muna.
8. "We will make you a deal you can't refuse," state seven Panthers who know what they're talking about. Chris Westmore, Chris Bales, Grant Gailius, Brad Farnsworth, Paul Coffman, George Miko, and Jim Harrick all worked in the snack bar at Freshman football games.
9. The special moment of being nominated for Junior Homecoming Princess is shared by friends Erin Hickman, Debbie Miller, and Devon Cloutier.
